THE COUNTY ELECTION.

At the election to-day each voter should deposit two tickets, in two separate boxes, in the ward in which he resides, and at the place where he is accustomed to vote in city elections. One ticket will bear the names of the three candidates for County officers—Treasurer, Surveyor and School Commissioner. The other will embrace those of the town officers of the respective towns and that of the Ward Supervisor for the ward in which the vote is cast. The separation of the tickets is necessitated by a difference in the qualifications of voters for the two kinds of officers. The law of the last Legislative session relative to Cook county, abolished the "town meetings" in South, West and North Chicago, and substituted the election by wards therefor.

The following are the Judges and places of election in the city:

First Ward—American House. Inspectors—Orrington Lunt, D. R. Holt, Morgan L. Keith.

Second Ward—Engine House No. 1. C. L. Jenks, Theobold Hartmann, J. L. Marsh.

Third Ward—Court House. George A. Flagg, C. B. Farwell, M Lynch.

Fourth Ward—Engine House No. 2. John R. Allen, John Boorman, Nicholas Burdell.

Fifth Ward—Engine House corner of Clinton and Washington streets. Noah Sturtevant, Russell Green, B. F. Bradley.

Sixth Ward—Engine House No. 6. J. B. Culver, P. McGinnis, Gustav Leverenz.

Seventh Ward—Corner of Wells street and Chicago avenue. N. Mears, A. Brunning, W. W. McFarlin.

Eighth Ward—North Market Hall. Eli Bates, Casper Butz, T. J. Kinsella.

Ninth Ward—Engine House No. 8. A. C. Coventry, G. B. Carpenter, John S. Voght.

Tenth Ward—Land Office of Mr. Shoup, corner Twelfth and South Clinton streets. Samuel Rugg, Charles Reitz, T. Schaaf.

Look Out for Frauds.

The Democrats have got up a spurious Republican ticket with the name of THOS. SPEER inserted for County Treasurer in place of A. H. Boyden. Look out for them. Mr. Speer has no interest in them nearly or remotely. Every vote cast for him will be thrown away.

Beecher on Slave Insurrections, etc.

The extracts which we publish this morning from a late sermon by Henry Ward Beecher, will repay perusal. Mr. Beecher gives his opinion fully and freely upon the subject of inciting to slave insurrections, running off slaves, sowing discontent in their minds, etc. Looking at the subject from a Christian stand point, he evolves a lesson which those impatient reformers, who seem to believe that it is their special mission to redress all the wrongs in the world without waiting the order of Providence, will do well to ponder.

Don't Do It.

Walker's omnibuses were carrying flags all day yesterday inscribed, "Vote for Thomas Speer for County Treasurer." Don't do anything of the sort. Mr. Speer has not the faintest idea of being elected. He does not expect to carry a ward or township. Outside of the city limits he will probably not receive a single vote, and within the city only a few hundred at the very outside. He is loaning the use of his name to Mr. Maher for the purpose of drawing off as many votes as possible from the Republican candidate. These flags on the omnibuses, and the tickets that may be peddled for Mr. Speer, don't cost him anything. We understand that he openly admits that. It would not be hard to guess who pays for them. We hope that no Republican will be so foolish as to throw away his vote for Treasurer. Certainly there is no more whole souled Republican in the County of Cook than Mr. Boyden, nor, has there ever been a more competent, attentive, accommodating or faithful Treasurer in this county.

Another Route to Rockford.

That portion of the Kenosha and Rockford Railroad between the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad and Rockford, is to be finished next Monday. The line will be run in connection with the Northwestern Road. An excursion from Rockford to this city is set down for Wednesday of next week. Chicago will extend to her Rockford friends a right cordial welcome.

Very Anxious.

The Doughfaces are exceedingly anxious to get possession of the County Treasury. They are very hungry; they feel as gaunt as famished wolves, and a chance at the contents of the people's strong box for the next two years, would be a favor gladly received. There is a great Presidential struggle coming off next year, which will be attended with considerable expense. It would be convenient if the pro-slavery gentlemen could have the County Treasury to levy on, instead of having to put their hands in their pockets and extract the needful. We can't think of any moral or political obligations the Republicans of Chicago are under to furnish ammunition to their enemies.

Ten Dollars Reward.

Wanted to know, a single Democratic County in which there are any Republican officeholders; a single Democratic County in which the Democracy have been called upon by their party organ and wire-workers to vote for an "independent" ticket; a single instance in which the Democracy have failed to take the whole loaf when it was in their power to do it, or where they have not intrigued for the half loaf when they could not do better. Times are hard and money scarce—who will earn the above reward?

Don't Swop.

All kinds of offers will be made to-day to Republicans to swop votes. The Democratic fuglemen will agree to furnish votes for any candidate on the Republican ticket and take their pay in votes for Hugh Maher. They want to secure the control of the county funds. Don't permit them to rope you in on this nice little game of "heads I win, tails you lose." Keep them out of the strong box.

Declines.

Just as we supposed and stated yesterday, Mr. Chas. Herrenkind never gave his consent to run as a candidate for Surveyor on the mongrel ticket. See his card in this morning's paper repudiating that use of his name. Mr. H. is a straight-out Republican all the time.

☞ Republicans. Those of you who vote in the afternoon will do a quarter of your duty; those who vote at noon will do half of it; those who vote early this morning for the Republican ticket, will do the whole of it.

Death of Dr. Philip Maxwell.

The intelligence of the death of Dr. Maxwell has been received with very general sadness in this community, where he has been for many years a most esteemed and respected resident.

He died at noon on Saturday at his country residence at Genev, Wisconsin, after an illness of some two or three weeks, in the full possession of his faculties.

In Dr. Maxwell passes away one of the old land marks of our community. He was born at Guilford, Vt., on the 3d of April, 1799, and was therefore a little over 60 years of age. He studied medicine in New York city under Dr. Mott, and commenced practice at Sackett's Harbor in 1822. In 1832 he was commissioned as a surgeon in the army by Gen. Jackson, and repaired to Fort Gratiot, at the foot of Lake Huron. He came to this city in the same year, and remained here till 1837, when the Army was removed. He served in the Florida war under Gen. Taylor, and was several years attached to his command.

In 1842 he resigned his commission and returned to this city, engaged successfully in the practice of his profession, till a few years since, when a handsome competence beguiled him from the active duties of professional life. Some three years since he retired to his beautiful country seat at Geneva, Wisconsin, where he has been spending the evening of his days in peace. He was one of the seven who originally located the land on which the beautiful town of Geneva now stands. It was purchased some time during his first residence in Chicago, and it was meet that here he should live the last few years of a well spent life.

Dr. Maxwell served his fellow-citizens in their legislative councils as well as in the army and at the home of affliction and sorrow. He was a member of the Legislature of New York in 1830, and was also a member of the Legislature of Illinois, if we mistake not, in 1850. He was a man of general character, and was ever a welcome guest at all public and social gatherings. He had a commanding form and a dignified bearing, which always insured attention and respect. His name is intimately and honorably connected with the early history of our city. Our older residents will deeply mourn his loss, for though for the last two or three years living in Wisconsin, he was frequently found at our social gatherings.

Dr. Maxwell had no children, but he adopted one or more daughters, to whom he was greatly endeared. One of these was Mrs. Joel A. Walter, of this city. By them and a large circle of friends his name will long be cherished.

A special train will leave the Galena Railroad depot to-morrow morning, to accommodate those friends who wish to attend his funeral. The precise time of starting will be given in our morning's issue.

Look Out for Roorbacks.

We ask our friends not to suffer themselves to be misled by any roorbacks that may be put afloat to-day respecting the Republican ticket or any of the candidates upon it. The gentlemen put in nomination are citizens of unimpeachable integrity, whose well-earned reputation should save them from any fabrication put afloat on the morning of election, when it is too late to show its falsity. That such an attempt will be made we have reason to more than suspect; but wheresoever and by whomsoever it may be set on foot, let it be branded as it deserves with the stamp of falsehood.

Election To-Day.

The Republicans intend to carry the States of Wisconsin, New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey, to-day, and add them to the Republican pyramid. Let the gallant Republicans of Chicago put on the cap-stone, and send it up with a shout. Every man to the polls. A strong pull and a pull altogether.

A Card.

To the Voters of Cook County:

I observe with regret that my name is used in connection with the office of County Surveyor on the so-call "Independent ticket." I wish to state, that I was not consulted by those who put my name there. It has been used without my knowledge or consent, as I am not a candidate for that or any other office, at this election. CHAS. HERRENKIND.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7, 1859.

A HAPPY RETORT.—In a political discussion at Sheboygan between Hobart and Carl Schurz, the former alluded to the fact that Mr. Schurz had been urged as a candidate for Governor, and of the surprise and regret of many Republicans that he was not nominated. Mr. Schurz replied, "that as some Republicans were surprised and grieved because I did not get the nomination for Governor, so many Democrats were surprised because Mr. Hobart did."

☞ The Bible says to mankind: "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath." We say to our own political friends to-day, let not the sun go down upon your laziness.

The Baltimore Election--Ruffianism and Lotteries--Brown's Fate.

[Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.

The result of the Maryland election, as officially ascertained, gives a Democratic majority of two in the Senate and eighteen in the House, making twenty on joint ballot. The Democratic nominations in the counties were made with particular reference to the condition of things in Baltimore, and the members are committed to adopt such measures as will effectually suppress ruffianism there.

The infamous lottery system will be broken down, as the parties interested in those swindling concerns contributed largely in money to keep up the fighting clubs. I learn that the officials in Baltimore are greatly alarmed at the prospect of these sweeping reforms, and are devising ways and means to avert them.

The re-election of the Hon. James A. Pearce, as U. S. Senator, is considered certain, though ex-Gov. Grayson and other gentlemen are pressing their claims. It is questionable whether Winter Davis and Harris will get through their contest as easily this time as last. A Democratic House then permitted them to retain their seats, and an Opposition House, so strongly Opposition as not to need their votes, can show its impartiality by rigidly investigating the alleged frauds, and if sustained, reject them. I am told the violation of the ballot-box resorted to, to compass their election, exceeded anything in the history of Missouri border ruffianism; and if so, the crime should be rebuked. Fraud is an engine that may be turned against any party, and none have suffered more from it than the Republicans.

The approaching execution of Brown is viewed with some trepidation by Northern Democrats, as they fear it will injure their party, by exciting anew the Anti-Slavery feeling of the North, and transform John Brown into a martyr. I learn, however, that in no case could Brown get away from Charlestown alive, even if pardoned by Gov. Wise, for the people there are so incensed at his rash attempt, which cost them so much trouble and loss of life, that they are determined he shall be put to death—if not by law, by Lynch law. Gov. Wise admired his spunk, and might feel disposed to be magnanimous, but the people ask for an example, to prevent others from following in Brown's footsteps.

Anticipated Slave Insurrection in Harrison County, Kentucky—Public Meeting.

[Correspondence of the Louisville Courier.]

CYNTHIANA, Ky., Nov. 2, 1859.

Eds. Courier: Yesterday a large and respectable meeting of the citizens of this place and vicinity was held at the Court House, to take into consideration the subject matter of the anonymous letter forewarning a servile insurrection of the slaves in this and several of the surrounding counties. Stringent resolutions were adopted, and a thorough police organization was effected for town and country, so that the slightest demonstration on the part of the conspirators will be the signal for a concentration of the forces of the whites for battle. Old Harrison's "soul's in arms and eager for the fray." As an evidence of that fact, there is not to be had, or was not yesterday, a single pistol in any of the stores for sale. A fresh supply has been ordered, and is expected to arrive to-day.

The excitement has reached the country, and the greatest consternation and alarm is manifested by some. In fact there are ten thousand exaggerated stories flying from tongue to tongue, to increase the already over-heated imagination. If anything further should turn up of interest, as regards the affair, I will advise you. Yours, truly, HARRISON.

ILLINOIS NORMAL UNIVERSITY—BRICKWORK FINISHED.—We are very happy to learn that, weather permitting, the last brick will be laid on the wall of the Normal University building at noon to-day. The work has been pushed forward with great energy since our last notice, and unless a heavy rain intervene, which at the hour we write does not look probable, the "heavy part" of this great enterprise will be finished on this blessed fifth day of November of all the year. We understand that some of the friends of the institution will be on hand to see the last brick properly put down.—Bloomington Pantagraph.

REFORM SCHOOL.—A refractory German lad, named Martin Base, was sent to the Reform School yesterday.

THE JUMPERTZ CASE.—The Henry Jumpertz case comes on before the Superior Court the present November term.

POLICE.—Yesterday's Police Court gave a dozen cases of the minor class of drunk and disorderly.

BARN BURNED AT HAMBURGH.—The barn of a Mr. Inerny, at Hamburgh, was destroyed by fire on Saturday evening with its contents. Loss, $800.

LOOK OUT FOR THEM.—West Siders to-day must look out for spurious tickets printed O. L. O'Hara instead of E. L. O'HARA for Town Clerk. It will not do to have Ed. defeated by so flimsy a dodge.

BURGLAR LOOSE.—A policeman on Saturday night saw a man go into the lumber office of Graves & Morris, on West Randolph street, under suspicious circumstances. He pitched into the fellow, but after a sharp fight the man got away.

CONFIDENCE GAME.—One of the Railroad Companies bought a stove of Thomas George & Co., on Friday, for which they were to send. Soon after a draymen came, to whom the stove was delivered. It now turns out that he had no authority, and the stove turns out missing.

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD GREAT LAND SUIT.—The new trial of the great suit of Geo. C. Bates vs. the Illinois Central Railroad Company, in the United States Circuit Court before Hon. Judge Drummond, is set down to commence to-day.

INDIA RUBBER SUITS.—For this week are set down the suits in which a score or more of our prominent wholesale dealers are made parties in the United States Circuit Court, before Judge Drummond, the plaintiff, Day, of New York, having sued for alleged infringements of his patents in selling shirred rubber goods.

MAIL MATTERS.—Curtis B. Callender has received the appointment of route mail agent on the St. Louis and Chicago Railway, vice W. D. Williams.

No time should be lost by the Department in establishing a thorough mail route on the newly opened line between this city and Oshkosh.

☞ If you want to buy yourselves rich, attend the greatest sale of lost baggage ever offered in Chicago, together with a lot of boots, shoes, dry goods, &c., &c., at the lost baggage room, near the depot of the Michigan Central Railroad, foot of South Water street. To be disposed of this day at 10 A. M. C. H. Keith & Son, Auctioneers.

PROTESTANT ORPHANS' ASYLUM FESTIVAL.—We learn that the members of the Light Guard Band have generously volunteered their services for the above Festival, to be held on Friday and Saturday evenings next, at Light Guard Hall. This does equal credit to their hearts and heads, for never was aid more needed or more worthily bestowed.

SOLICITING AID.—Rev. Elisha Weaver, former pastor of the African M. E. Church in this city, and at present the General Book Steward of the African M. E. Church, elected at the Philadelphia Conference, is in this city seeking to raise funds, it being the desire of the friends of that cause to procure a fund of $20,000 for the furtherance of its plans in elevating the religious, moral and social status of their race.

CARPETS AND CURTAIN GOODS AT AUCTION.—This morning, commencing at 9½ o'clock precisely, Mr. John West commences the sale (at auction,) of his entire stock of Carpets, Curtain Goods, etc., at his store room, No. 111 Lake st., up stairs. All the goods are to be sold free and without reserve, and in quantities to suit purchasers. Messrs. Gilbert & Sampson are the auctioneers.

PICTURES.—W. Schaas, of New York, has published a very fine colored lithograph of the Great Eastern, which is in every respect the best picture of the great ship yet presented to the American public. McNally & Co., 21 Dearborn street, have it, also three beautiful steel engravings of "Wyoming," "Capt. Sutter," and "Mount Vernon in the Olden Time," which they sell for one dollar each.

HEIGHT OF COURTESY.—Let a friend tell his story of a visit to one of our great packing houses. Says he: "The foreman took us all over the premises. We saw everything. He was a good-natured Scotchman, and full of a desire to 'put us through in good shape.' We went to where the men were killing the hogs at the rate of ten or a dozen in as many minutes, first by knocking them down with a sledge, then sticking them. We looked on a minute or two, when he burst out, 'Wouldn't ye like to knock down a hog or two yourself?' We declined his invitation, having no personal animosity against the hogs." Courteous in the foreman, anyway.

NORTHWESTERN RAILWAY POLKA.—H. M. Higgins, the enterprising music publisher at No. 45 Lake street, has just issued the Northwestern Railway Polka, by Mrs. Delia B. Ward. As commemorative of the late charming excursion of our citizens over the railroad in question to Fond du Lac and Oshkosh it has further merits of its own. It has a beautifully gotten up title page presenting fine lithograph views of the Janesville viaduct on the road, also fine vignettes of a Chicago Light Artillery man, and one of our Zouaves. Also a view of Armory Hall at Fond du Lac, with the dance in progress.

AFFRAY ON SHIPBOARD—ALMOST A MURDER—ATTEMPT TO CONCEAL THE CONSEQUENCES.—Coroner James received intelligence that a murder had been committed on Sunday, on shipboard, and that the body had been made way with. The officers were soon on the track and found the case to present the following aspects.

William Smith, mariner on the schooner White Squall, had a falling out on Saturday night with one James Price, an old acquaintance, during a drinking bout. A third party was present at the outset but went below. In the morning on going on deck, he saw everywhere traces of blood, and both men missing. He at once gave the alarm to the police, and after a long search, Price was found in a small schooner lying at the Rush street bridge. Officers Jackson and Dries subsequently found Smith in a saloon on Water street, and arrested him. Price was removed to the Marine Hospital, and upon examination his head was found horribly cut. His face was slashed in several places also, as well as his neck. Fortunately none of the numerous wounds were fatal, and the physician thinks he will recover. Smith has been held for further examination.

SINGULAR AND MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR—KIDNAPPING A YOUNG WHITE CHILD.—Intelligence reached our detectives in this city yesterday of a matter that is causing the most profound sensation in the vicinity of Will County. It seems that on Saturday last a young female child two years old was stolen from the residence of its parents, the father, Peter Carsen, a respectable German farmer at Washington township, near Crete. Two men in a wagon drawn by a pair of bay horses were near the premises, and it is supposed took the child away with them.

During Saturday night and Sunday the country was being scoured far and wide by large companies of the residents of that vicinity, in every direction. The men and team have been traced to Blue Island and thence to the Junction six miles from this city. In Thornton and Blue Island persons state that they saw a team like that referred to with two men and a little girl between them. The men drove a pair of bay horses, with long tails, attached to a two-seat, light spring wagon, the body painted red. The child is a girl two years and a half old, light complexion and hair almost white. She had on a blue waist and figured red calico dress, being clothed in German fashion.

A Suggestion.

We learn that our friends at Rockford and thereabouts are about to celebrate their new connection with this city, by the completion of the Kenosha and Rockford Railroad to Harvard on the Chicago and Northwestern, in an excursion to this city about the middle of next week. The preparations making are such that will ensure all things favoring a large and brilliant excursion. We make the suggestion that at this same excursion, those who by a late sad interruption of their plans were prevented from completing their excursion on the same line, join the party, and excursion train from the upper end of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, meeting the Rockford train at Harvard, and all come in together.

On the train to which the Belleville casualty occurred, were very many who were making their trip to Chicago one of business and pleasure combined. Such still desire to visit us. The excursion was originally planned by the managers of the C. & N. W. R. R., to show the merchants and manufacturers of the vicinity of Lake Winnebago and Lake Horicon the convenience and advantage of their newly opened channel of trade to our market. Why cannot these join the excursion on next week, and thus give the Rockford excursion the character of a movement from along the entire extent of the Chicago and Northwestern and its branches? What say the managers of the road, and our citizens? The latter, of course, will have but one voice, and that of welcome. We believe the Railroad Company, themselves, would not be averse to enlarging their facilities on the day in question, and combining the delegations from Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, and other towns with those from Rockford.

REPUBLICAN MEETING.—The meeting at North Market Hall last evening, although not numerously attended, was one of decided interest. Eli Bates, Esq., presided, and Charles Klemm acted as Secretary. Three more eloquent and telling speeches are rarely made at one meeting than those by Messrs. Arnold, Kreismann and Larned, and they were received with very marked enthusiasm.

THE EXHIBITION OF THE DEAF MUTES LAST EVENING.—One of the most pleasing exhibitions that ever delighted a packed and crowded house at Metropolitan Hall, was the exhibition of the Deaf Mutes that took place last evening, under the care of their teacher, P. G. Gillett, Esq., of the Illinois State Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb, at Jacksonville. The performers last evening were ten selected from the entire number of inmates, with a design of showing their proficiency at different stages of instruction, from three months at the institution to three years.

The entertainment was a free one, and the audience left neither sitting nor standing room. We cannot particularize where all was so good, but have none too strongly characterized the merit of the whole as above. The noble public charity which develops in these unfortunates such readiness in expressing and shaping their wonderfully quick perceptions, is by such exhibitions strongly enforced and kept before the public mind. Mr. Gillett has a rare faculty of instruction.

YOUNG MEN'S ASSOCIATION—THE VANDENHOFF READING.—The Managers of the young Men's Association have just issued a catalogue of their library, including in the same tasteful pamphlet of one hundred and twenty pages much other matter of interest to the members and friends of the Association. We are glad to find these evidences of an intelligent and wide-awake management in an Association than which not another has more intimate connection with the advancement of literary culture here. E. S. Wells, the active President, and the other officers, deserve high credit for the results of their stewardship thus far. A full and reliable catalogue has been among the much needed aids to an intelligent use of the Library.

To-night takes place the Reading of Mr. Vandenhoff at Metropolitan Halll. Though not a part of the course, it is the opening night of the Association in the place it is to hold in our Winter Evening Entertainments, and the inauguration is thus in most auspicious keeping. Mr. Vandenhoff will doubtless draw a full house, as he should.

DOES HIS MOTHER KNOW HE'S OUT.—The St. Louis Democrat says:

A little boy about eleven years of age, arrived in this city on Friday, from Chicago. He gives his name as John Corney, and say that he came here unaccompanied by any person, for the purpose of living with his mother, who has for some time been a resident of this city. A gentleman finding him wandering about the streets, brought him to the Central Police Station, from which place he was sent to the City Missionary, Mr. Ward.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE LAW OF PARTNERSHIP.—Henry Doty vs. Henry Howland et al.—This case, involving some points of interest to commercial men, was before the Superior Court of Chicago three days of the last week. It came upon motions by the plaintiff for a receiver and to dissolve the partnership between Doty and Howland, lumbermen on the South Branch, and on like motion by the defendants to dissolve the injunctions in the cause.

The case was argued by H. G. Spafford and S. A. Goodwin for the plaintiff, and J. L. Stark and H. G. Miller for defendants.

It appeared that on the 12th Sept. last, Howland made a general assignment in the name of the company to a trustee, giving preferences to a large amount to individual creditors, to whom he had in fact given firm paper.

It is charged in the bill that no assent of any kind was ever given by the complainant to the use of the firm name in payment of Howland's individual debts; that no complainant had no knowledge after the execution of the assignment, that Howland had so used the firm name; and that the assignment is void for fraud.

The sworn answer of Howland declares that assent to such use of the firm name was expressly given by said complainant, and that complainant knew of such use.

Judge Wilson, in deciding the motion, said: "Some part of the labor of counsel might have been saved had they known that the main question in this case was recently before this Court (unreported) and received deliberate examination.

"I consider this case as an attempt by one partner apparently to devote the property and assets of the firm to the payment of his own private debts. The case furnishes no proof that the firm notes given for his individual debts by Howland were so given with the assent of Doty.

"It is apparent that there was no necessity for an assignment by the firm. Its convertible assets largely exceeded its legitimate debts.

"It is just as apparent that Howland was individually insolvent, and execution against Howland would reach this property. The concern must therefore soon have stopped and the creditors of the firm would have been compelled to file bills to marshal the assets.

"The evidence shows that Mr. Doty knew that Howland had a private debt which he was carrying along. But there is nothing in the books of the firm nor in the whole correspondence to show Doty that Howland was using the name of the firm for this purpose. On the other hand, Howland is continually writing to Doty, that he (Howland) is in advance, and urging Doty to raise money for him for this reason. Why should he say this if he understood that these were firm debts or notes? He would have said we must have money, or raise money to pay our notes.

"I understand the law to be that one partner has no right to make a general assignment with preferences. All the cases cited and relied on are exceptional cases, (5 Crouch 300; 1 Brock R 456; 4 Nott and McCord 519). Mr. Doty could have been consulted in this case. He was here the night before and also the day after the assignment. He resided at Detroit, but twelve hours' ride from this place, and within reach of the telegraph. The rights of partners are equal. Doty had as much right to do this thing as Howland. Suppose he had, and preferred his Detroit friends, would Howland be satisfied with such an assignment?

"It is to be regretted that the Courts have ever upheld a general assignment with preferences. While the business is going on the party must necessarily have this power, and may pay debts or sell goods. But when it comes to a question of general assignment the reason of the rule ceases. So far as the cases hold me I shall be controlled. But if it were a new question I should never sustain such an assignment. It is contrary to the general principle of all insolvent laws, and the bankrupt laws of England and the United States, and also of the statutes regulating the administration of the estates of deceased persons. If the courts had followed these analogies as to general assignments they would have rendered the law more harmonious in my judgment, and better subserved the ends of justice. By the law as it stands these debtors had a right to make an assignment with preferences, although I think they ought not to possess that right. In this case there was no difficulty in consulting Doty. It never could have been supposed indeed that he would sign this instrument. As an honest man he never could have consented, because as such he should devote the partnership property to the payment of partnership debts. This assignment is void for want of his assent, and it is of a most obnoxious character on account of giving preferences to private debts sufficient to absorb all the assets.

"In relation to Carter, his claim is under the assignment as I now understand it. No delivery had been made under his receipt. It is similar to a common warehouse receipt. There is a difference in relation to what constitutes a delivery between such receipts covering grain mingled in bulk and lumber. It was at best a contract to deliver lumber. The assignment transfers all the property of the concern generally except that only covered by the receipt, and as to that, makes Carter assignee. The legal effect of the assignment is, that Carter is a preferred creditor under the assignment. This firm must be declared dissolved, a receiver appointed and the injunction retained."

LOCAL MATTERS.

☞ Go to John Jones, 119 Dearborn street, and get your clothes cleaned and repaired. They will be well done and at prices to suit the times.

NOTICE.—There is, at this time, in Chicago, an individual, who cures Epilepsy. He is, evidently, the only one who has arrived at the means. Volumes could be said regarding this matter, both of the means and the experience of the individual. It, however, is thought better that personal interviews be substituted, which can be had (free of charge) by addressing A. B. (pre-paid) at the Richmond House. This, also, embraces a cure of a partial Aberration of the Mind. The best reference will be afforded. no8-3t*

☞ George Vandenhoff will give one of his inimitable entertainments this evening at Metropolitan Hall. The works of the poets and dramatists glow with new beauties as rendered by this justly celebrated man. Tickets may be had at the door of the hall, at D. B. Cooke & Co.'s, at S. C. Griggs & Co.'s, and at E. S. Wells' boot and shoe store.

☞ The style and quality of clothing made to order at Tappen's would be creditable to any Broadway or Washington street first class tailoring house. The prices charged by him are lower than those of any other reliable concern in town. Those who have heretofore sent east for fine clothes need only make a trial to be convinced.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1859.

THE ELECTION TO-DAY.

There is but one thing requisite to secure a Republican triumph in our County and Town election to-day—and that is a full Republican vote. Unfortunately for its uninterrupted success, the Republican party is made up largely from that class of citizens whose business avocations are pressing, requiring their constant care and attention, and who, for that reason, are too apt to overlook their duty as citizens in the absorbing pursuit of business. It is only on great occasions, when we have a President, or Governor, or Senator to elect, that this class of citizens bethink them of the grave duty of voting. On the other hand, the Democratic party, in the main, is made up of men who find in the excitement of a crowd and in the free whisky and free shindies which an election day never fails to furnish, that which is far more attractive than their customary daily avocations. They are always on hand at an election, whether it be for constable or President. For which reasons it happens that the strength of the last-named party is always brought out whenever there is any voting to be done, while that of the Republican party is used for great occasions only. Until Republicans shall change their course in this respect, and make it a matter of patriotic and religious duty to have a voice in the selection of all our public officers—the lowest as well as the highest—they need not expect their principles to gain any permanent ascendency either in the federal or State government, nor need they look for any high standard of qualification or of integrity in the incumbents of our minor offices. We ask every Republican who may take up this paper this morning, if he has not interests of very grave import dependent upon the character of those who discharge the subordinate ministerial functions of government? And if so, whether he is safe, as a general rule, in leaving their selection to the class of men who are drawn to the polls solely by love of excitement and the temptations which patriotic candidates hold out to induce their presence? We ask them, furthermore, if the prestige of uninterrupted success in our local elections is not worth laboring for, in consideration of its effect in deciding those great national issues which appeal to the highest patriotism of citizens and which involve the best interests of man? A defeat of the Republican county ticket to-day would be heralded throughout the country as a Democratic triumph. A greater show of Democratic than Republican strength in the city would be hailed as a loss on the part of the latter, and would give our opponents an advantage in the city election next spring, and in the next fall election, at which so much will be at stake. This is precisely what our opponents are working for. Under the guise of a so-called "Independent" ticket, they are laboring to defeat the Republican nominations in the hope that it will enable them to achieve hereafter a series of Democratic victories. To do this they are active, untiring and unscrupulous, as they always are, laboring on the one hand to seduce Republicans into voting the "Independent" ticket, and on the other careful to get out the whole Democratic strength. If there be a Republican who doubts this, let him go to the polls to-day and be convinced; and, whether doubting it or not, let every Republican in the city and county turn out and vote the Republican ticket.

HARK FROM THE TOMBS.

A doleful sound. Uttered by Brown! Not Old Brown, but the other Brown. "Not that man, but another man." To wit, GEORGE WASHINGTON BROWN. G. Washington Whillikens Brown is the editor of a Democratic paper nicknamed the Herald of Freedom. It is published at Lawrence, Kansas. In its earlier history it was extinguished by the Border Ruffians. Its type, or a portion of it, was thrown into the Kaw River. The Free State boys fished it out, run it into balls, and battered down Titus' fort with it. Brown charged them about a dollar a pound for it! It was worth some sixty cents, at the outside. It was supposed that Brown had added the cost of composition to that part of it which had been made up into the forms. The Free State boys being "short," did not pay the bill. So Brown posted it to Chicago and drew on the National Kansas Committee for the amount. The Committee didn't get a good hold on the paper, when it came round; so it "flopped" back and struck Brown in a vital part—his pocket—and the strong man wept. Brown had better success however, in another line. Nature made him a beggar. He could get money where the blind man, with the crippled wife, and the deaf and dumb children, would have gone away hungry and penniless. He had the good fortune to be taken prisoner with Robinson, Jenkins, Smith and others, and to be confined in a military camp near Lecompton a few weeks. (His fellow prisoners said that he tried to bargain with Shannon for his own liberty on condition of deserting the Free State cause. Not being successful with Shannon, he traded subsequently with Walker for cash—government advertisements. His fellow-prisoners said also that he was captured in the first instance by a negro, who was not so well armed as Brown himself—but that is neither here nor there.) Gathering up the accumulated woes of Kansas, and dashing them recklessly on his own head, he came to the Northern States on a begging tour. No mendicant friar was ever half so persistent. He established alms-houses in various quarters—one at Alton, one at Chicago, and we know not how many more. We only know that they were largely profitable; that they paid better dividends than any newspaper in the country, whose resources were those of printing and publishing merely. His loss he estimated at about the cost of the most expensive establishment in this city, and though he never accounted to anybody for the sums collected from the friends of free Kansas, we supposed, at the time that he got at least four prices for his demolished office, besides a subscription list of 30,000 copies. It was after the successful errand here noted, that he put in his bill for type which had been converted into cannon balls! Having got all the money that could be realized on this side of the house, he sold out to the pro-slavery interest at a good deal less than cost, and has since been serving his purchasers in the capacity of "Cow Boy." His precise functions in the Democratic party are, to pretend friendship for the Republicans and to oppose everything the Republicans do—to bolt Republican nominations, to cast suspicion on Republican candidates, and to throw cold water on Republican policy. In pursuance of this arrangement, we found him of late battling against the Wyandotte Constitution. In 1860 he will probably hoist the Republican ticket and use his columns diligently for the Charleston nominee.

This person had pretty much passed out of the public mind. Quotations from his paper were occasionally seen in the Chicago Times, the N. Y. Herald, and the Washington Constitution. But his subscription list had run down to about nothing, and his existence had been forgotten by the mass of the people in the Northern States. His last considerable appeal for notoriety was a letter which he addressed to the Kansas correspondent of the N. Y. Herald requesting that person to stigmatize Gov. Robinson as "an unmitigated liar"—which, the correspondent replied, he would not do, because he did not believe it to be a fact. But Brown has again called aloud from the tomb of his obscurity. The capture of John Brown at Harper's Ferry has put a tongue in his mouth. He has published an article full of vituperation against John Brown, and yet fuller of falsehoods by implication, the animus of which, if not furnished by federal dollars, probably lies in a [illegible] [illegible] uttered by John Brown on the occasion of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. The [illegible] of Mr. Washington Brown's article is the Pottawatomie execution of May 24, 1856, in which five pro-slavery men "came" mysteriously to their death. Says Brown (G. Washington):

> "No man in Kansas has pretended to deny that Old John Brown led that murderous foray, which massacred those men. Up to that period not a hair of Old John Brown's head, or that of any of his sons, had been injured by the pro-slavery party."

Though the fact of John Brown's complicity in the Pottawatomie transaction depends wholly on rumor, it would have been proper for Brown (G. Washington) to give the whole of the rumor. We will supply the hiatus: A party of five of Buford's ruffians fell in with Brown while the latter was out surveying. Taking him for one of Calhoun's subalterns on the Kansas survey they told him that they were charged with the errand of taking Brown's life, and they had solemnly sworn to do it. They did not know their victim personally, but they were to find a guide somewhere near Osawatomie to conduct them to his house, where they would make short work of all the inmates. Brown parted from them with the remark that they would probably find the person they wanted at home! The sequel is known. The would-be murderers were spared the crime which they had in contemplation. They preceded Brown in their journey to the undiscovered country by a few years. Whatever the responsibility of the act, it is that of John Brown and no other, if rumor is correct in placing it at his door—which we do not question. In its worst light, (and we do not care to apologize for it), it is not to be compared for a moment with the Marais des Cygnes massacre, in the element of cold-blooded ferocity.

In reference to the Harper's Ferry affair Brown, (G. Washington), says mysteriously, that he has "facts and figures" in his office, which will be produced when called for. Figures the Napoleon of beggars doubtless has, relating to the donations which put him on his legs again. Before he commences prating on any other branch of arithmetic let him make an exhibit of these, and extend his researches to the number of columns of advertisements, and the amount of cash, with which the federal authorities afterwards bought him. It would be interesting to know at what price James Buchanan estimated him.

EXCESSIVE IMPORTATIONS.

Now that the rush of business for the year is over, the New York merchants who have been engaged in flooding the country with foreign goods, have leisure to look about them and see the danger with which they are threatened. Depending upon the barrenness of the markets, consequent upon the stagnation of trade in 1858, but without considering the inability of would-be consumers to pay for the ship-loads of gewgaws and jimcracks that have been brought in, they set themselves steadily at work to make fortunes for themselves, or, failing in that, to ruin the country in a single year. The result of their labors may be summed up as follows:

Imports of Foreign Merchandise.	1858.	1859.
January	$7,796,000	19,877,000
February	8,960,000	18,756,000
March	11,729,000	20,880,000
April	11,169,000	24,425,000
May	11,454,000	21,152,000
June	10,116,000	24,070,000
July	18,506,000	27,288,000
August	19,624,000	34,650,000
September	16,478,000	16,847,000
October	13,545,000	15,618,000
Total for ten months	$128,879,000	221,197,000

But while thus crowding the New York warehouses with the products of foreign looms, forges and workshops, that they have been unmindful of the day in which these two hundred and twenty millions of dollars must be repaid, is clear from the exports which the country has been able to send out while these enormous importations were coming in. We find in the New York papers of Saturday, the following:

Exports of Domestic Produce.	1858.	1859.
January	$4,208,000	3,692,000
February	3,710,000	3,299,000
March	4,503,000	5,371,000
April	5,613,000	5,930,000
May	4,282,000	5,180,000
June	6,392,000	5,194,000
July	5,120,000	4,651,000
August	4,660,000	5,16[illegible],000
September	3,895,000	4,946,000
October	5,233,000	4,753,000
Total for ten months	$47,498,000	49,647,000

Between the amount of imports and exports is a margin large enough—$172,000,000—to satisfy the most inveterate Free Trader in the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that Specie is nothing but merchandise, we must include the export of it, and then see how we stand. We find that in ten months, New York has shipped,

	1858.	1859.
Specie	$23,842,000	$66,193,000

Adding then, the exports of specie and domestic produce together, we find that New York has in of the current year bought goods to the amount of $221,000,000, and that she has been able to pay therefor, in specie and the products of the country, $115,000,000—leaving a balance of $106,000,000, which must be provided for out of the year's cotton crop. This is a disastrous showing; and we do not wonder that the metropolitan papers, in view of the large stocks in the importers' hands, the refusal of the western merchants to buy, and the stringency of the money market, are sounding a note of alarm; nor that failures among those houses which have been apparently the most prosperous have become alarmingly frequent, with the certain prospect of plenty more of the same sort before Spring.

We congratulate Western dealers who have resisted the temptation to buy, that they will be almost wholly exempt from the disasters in which the confidence men of the East appear to be involved.

Ohio Election—Official.

The State Journal of the 4th publishes a full table of the vote of Ohio at the recent State elections, and the footings with the majority for each candidate.

The total vote is a large one, 355,768, being ten thousand over the vote of last year. It, however, falls short 50,884 votes of the Presidential vote of 1856. We give a summary:

GOVERNOR.

William Dennison, Jr.	184,602
Rufus P. Ranney	171,366
Dennison's majority	13,236

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

Robert C. Kirk	185,334
Wm. H. Safford	170,587
Kirk's majority	14,747

Ranney run a little ahead of his ticket on the Western Reserve. The Republican majority on the other State officers range between fourteen and fifteen thousand. The Republicans directed their chief efforts to secure the Legislature, in view of the fact that a United States Senator is to be chosen by it. The aggregate majorities of the Republican candidates over the Democratic candidates for the Legislature is 21,586.

The State ticket was considered entirely safe and was left to take care of itself; but not so the Legislature. The Republicans were determined to leave nothing to chance on this important office. They were bound to put Pugh out and Chase in the National Senate, and to this end rolled up a majority of nearly 22,000. The average majority, taking the whole ticket—Legislature in both branches and Senate—exceeds 16,000. Next year the Buckeyes will put it to 30,000 for a Republican President.

The Copeland Confession.

The Cleveland Leader publishes the following letters from the brothers Plumb of Oberlin:

OBERLIN, Oct. 31, 1859.

EDITOR MORNING LEADER: I have just been shown the National Democrat, of this morning, containing a statement purporting to come from John Copeland, which, if true, would implicate me in the insurrection at Harper's Ferry.

I hasten to say that the charges contained therein are untrue. I never had a word of conversation with Copeland upon the Harper's Ferry insurrection among slaves, nor did I give Copeland money for the purpose named, or for any other purpose.

Yours respectfully, RALPH PLUMB.

OBERLIN, Oct. 31, 1859.

EDITOR MORNING LEADER: I wish to add to what has been said by my brother respecting the charges purporting to have been made by Copeland, that it is not true that I ever gave money to Copeland, nor did my brother do so in my presence or to my knowledge, nor did I ever have a word of conversation with Copeland, excepting when I appeared as counsel against him when he was on his trial for an assault upon the Marshal of this village.

Yours, S. PLUMB.

DESTRUCTIVE PRAIRIE FIRE.—On last Tuesday night the great tracts of prairie to the north-east, between here and Money Creek, were on fire, as was remarked by many of our citizens. Yesterday we learned that much damage was the result. The farm of Mr. Gibbons, in that direction, was invaded by the flying flames, and thirty acres of corn destroyed, a large quantity of grain in the stack, (nearly his entire crop) several thousand rails,—in fact, making a pretty clean sweep of the combustible part of the whole farm. In the early part of the same evening a dense fire was also observed to be raging, apparently five or six miles distant, to the north-east, and it is feared that more damage is yet to be heard from.—Bloomington Pantagraph, 5th.

SLAVERY.

Henry Ward Beecher on Running off Slaves—Servile Insurrection—Etc.

The following extracts from a discourse by Henry Ward Beecher delivered in Plymouth Church on the 30th ult., inculcate sentiments of a conservative and fraternal character. They are, in the main, timely words, deserving the earnest consideration of the reader:

Because slavery is a great sin, because it is a national curse, it does not follow that we have a right to say anything or do anything that we may happen to please. We certainly have no right to attack it in any manner that will gratify men's fancies or passions. It is computed that there are four millions of colored slaves in our nation. These dwell in fifteen different Southern States, with a population of ten million whites. These sovereign States are united to us not by any federal ligaments, but by vital interests, by a common national life. And the question of duty is not simply what is duty toward the blacks, not what is duty toward the whites, but what is duty to each, and to both united. I am bound by the great law of love to consider my duties toward the slave, and I am bound by the great law of love also to consider my duties toward the white man, who is his master! Both are to be treated with Christian wisdom and forbearance. We must seek to benefit the slave as much as the white man, and the white man as much as the slave. We must keep in mind the interest of every part—of the slaves themselves, of the white population, and of the whole brotherhood of States federated into national life. And while the principles of liberty and justice are one and the same, always and everywhere, the wisest method of conferring upon man the benefits of liberty and justice, demands great consideration, according to circumstances.

How to apply an acknowledged principle in practical life, is a task more difficult than the defense of the principle. It is harder to define what would be just in certain emergencies, than to establish the duty, claims, and authority of justice.

1. First, we have no right to treat the citizens of the South with acrimony and bitterness, because they are involved in a system of wrong-doing. Wrong is to be exposed. But the spirit of rebuke may be as wicked before God, as the spirit of the evil rebuked. Simplicity and firmness in truth are more powerful than any vehement bitterness. Speaking the truth in love is the Apostle's prescription. Some men so love that they will not speak painful truth, and some men utter truth so bitterly as to destroy love; and both are evil-doers. A malignant speech of slavery will not do any good; and, most of all, it will not do those any good who most excite our sympathy—the children of bondage. If we hope to ameliorate the condition of the slave, the first step must not be taken by setting the master against him. We may be sure that God will not employ mere wrath, for wisdom; and that he will raise up and send forth, when his day comes, fearless men, who shall speak the truth for justice, in the spirit of love. Therefore, it is a matter, not merely of political and secular wisdom, but of Christian conscience, that those that have at heart the welfare of the enslaved should maintain a Christian spirit. This can be done without giving up one word of truth, or one principle of righteousness. A man may be fearless and plain spoken, and yet give evidence of being sympathetic, and kind hearted and loving.

2. The breeding of discontent among the bondmen of our land is not the way to help them. Whatever gloomy thoughts the slave's own mind may brood, we are not to carry disquiet to him, from without.

If I could have my way, every man on the globe should be a free man, and at once! But as they cannot be, will not be, for ages, is it better that bitter discontent should be inspired in them—or Christian quietness or patient waiting? If restlessness would bring freedom, they would never rest. But I firmly believe that moral goodness in the slave is the harbinger of Liberty! The influence of national freedom would gradually reach the enslaved, it will hereby inspire that restlessness which precedes development. Germination is the most silent, but most disturbing of all natural processes. Slaves are bound to feel the universal summer of civilization. In this way they must come to restless yearnings. We cannot help that, and will not if we could. It is God's sign that spring has come to them. The soul is coming up. There must be room for it to grow. But this is a very different thing from surly discontent, stirred up from without, and left to rankle in their unenlightened natures. The time is rapidly coming when the Southern Christian will feel a new inspiration. We are not far removed from a revival of the doctrines of Christian manhood, and the divine right of man. When this pentecost comes, the slaves will be stirred by their own masters. We must work upon the master. Make him discontented with slavery, and he will speedily take care of the rest. Before this time comes, any attempt to excite discontent among the slaves will work mischief to them, and not good. And my experience—and I have had some experience in this matter—is, that men who tamper with slaves and incite them, are not themselves to be trusted. They are not honest men, unless they are fanatical. If they have their reason, they usually have lost their conscience. I never will trust such men with money, nor place any confidence in them whatsoever. I do not know why it is so, but my experience has taught me that men who do such things are crafty, and come forth from such tampering unreliable men. Conspirators, the world over, are bad men. And if I were in the South—and I think I have the reputation there of being a tolerably stout abolitionist—I should, not from fear of the master, but from the most deliberate sense of the injurious effects of it to the slave, never by word, nor sign, nor act, do anything to excite discontent among those that are in slavery. The condition of the slave must be changed, but the change cannot go on in one part of the community alone. There must be change in the law, change in the church, change in the upper classes, change in the middle, and in all classes. Emancipation, when it comes, will come either by revolution, or by a change of public opinion in the whole community. No influences, then, are adequate to the relief the slave, which are not of a proportion and power sufficient to modify the thought and the feeling of the whole community. The evil is not partial. It cannot be cured by partial remedies. Our plans must include a universal change in policy, feeling, purpose, theory, and practice, in the nation. The application of simple remedies to single spots, in this great body of disease, will serve to produce a useless irritation; it will merely fester the hand but not cure the whole body.

3. No relief will be carried to the slaves of the South, as a body, by any individual or organized plans to carry them off, or to incite them to abscond.

The more enlightened and liberty-loving among the Southern slaves, bear too much of their masters' blood not to avail themselves of any opening to escape. It is their right; it will be their practice. Free locomotion is an incident to slave property, which the master must put up with. Nimble legs are much used in providence to temper the severity of slavery. If, therefore, an enslaved man acting from the yearnings of his own heart, desires to run away, who shall forbid him? In all the earth, wherever a human being is held in bondage, he has a right to slough his burden and break his yoke if he can. If he wishes liberty, and is willing to dare and suffer for it, let him! If by his manly courage he achieves it, he ought to have it. And I honor such a man!

Nay, if he has escaped and comes to me, I owe him shelter, succor, defence, and God-speed to a final safety. If there were as many laws as there are lines in the Fugitive Slave law, and as many officers as there were lions in Daniel's lions' den, I would disregard every law, but God's, and help the fugitive! The officers might catch me, but not him, if I could help it. A man whose own heart has inspired liberty and courage sufficient to enable him to achieve what he desired, shall never come to my door, and not be made as welcome as my own child. I will adopt him for God's sake, and for the sake of Christ, who broods over the weak and perishing. Nor am I singular in such feelings and purposes. Ten thousand men, even in the South, would feel and do the same. A man who would not help a fellow creature flying for his liberty, must be either a villain or a politician.

But all this is very different from stirring up discontent, and setting on men to escape by outside influence.

I stand on the outside of this great cordon of darkness, and every man that escapes from it, running for his life, shall have some help from me, if he comes forth of his own free accord; yet, I am not the man to go in and incite slaves to run away, to send any other man to do it, to approve it, or to countenance it. I do not believe we have a right to carry into the system of slavery exterior discontent; and for this reason: that it is not good for the slaves themselves. It is short-sighted humanity, at best, and poor policy for both the blacks and the whites. And I say again, I would not trust a man that would do it. It would injure the blacks chiefly and especially. How it would injure them, will appear when I come to speak positively of what is the right way to promote the liberty of the enslaved. I may say here, however, that the higher a man is raised in the scale of being, the harder it will be to hold him in bondage and to sell him; while the more he is like an animal, the easier it will be to hold him in thrall and harness. The more you make slave-holders feel that when they oppress and sell a man, they are oppressing and selling God's image, the harder it will be for them to continue to enslave and traffic in human beings. Therefore, whatever you do to inspire in the slave high and noble and godlike feelings, tends to loosen his his chains; and whatever shall inspire in him base, low, and cruel feelings, tightens them.

Running away is all fair for single cases. It is God's remedy for all cases of special hardship. It is the natural right of any slave who has manhood enough to resent even tolerant bondage. But we are not speaking of the remedy for individuals—but the remedy for the whole system. Four million men cannot run away, until God sends ten Egyptian plagues to help them. And those who go among the slaves to stir up such a disposition, will help the hundreds at the expense of the millions. Those left behind will be demoralized, and becoming less trustworthy, will grow sullen under increased severity and vigilance.

4. Still less would we tolerate anything like insurrection and servile war. It would be the most cruel, hopeless, and desperate of all follies, to seek emancipation by the sword and by blood. And though I love liberty as my own life; though I long for it in every human being; though, if God, by unequivocal providences, should ordain that it should come again as of old, through terrible plagues on the first born, and by other terrors of ill, I should submit to the Divine behest; yet, so far as human instrumentation is concerned, with all the tenacity of a man, with all the faith of a Christian, and with all the zeal and warmth of a philanthropist, I protest against any counsels that lead to insurrection, servile war and bloodshed. It is bad for the master—bad for the slave—bad for all that are neighbors to them—bad for the whole land—bad from beginning to end! An evil so unmixed and malignant, that its origin can scarcely be doubted.

Now, if the Africans in our land were intelligent; if they understood themselves; if they had self-governing power; if they were able first to throw off the yoke of laws and constitutions, and afterwards to defend and build themselves up in a civil state; then they would have just the same right to assume their independence that any nation has.

But does any man believe that this is the case? Does any man believe that this vast horde of undisciplined Africans, if set free, would have cohesive power enough to organize themselves into a government, and maintain their independence? If there be men who believe this, I am not among them. I certainly think that even slaves would be made immeasurably better by liberty; but I do not believe they would be made better by liberty gained by insurrection or rebellion. A regulated liberty; a liberty possessed with the consent of their masters; a liberty under the laws and institutions of the country; a liberty which would make them common beneficiaries of those institutions, and principles which make us wise and happy—such a liberty would be a great blessing to them. Freedom, with law and government, is a good, but without them it is a mischief. And anything that tends to incite among men a vague insurrectionary spirit, is a great and cruel wrong to them.

If, in view of the wrongs of slavery, you say that you do not care for the master, but only the slave, I reply that you should care for both master and slave! If you do not care for the fate of the wrong-doing white man! But even though your sympathy were only for the slave, then for his sake you ought to set your face against, and discountenance anything like an insurrectionary spirit.

By all the ways consistent with the fearless assertion of truth, we must maintain sympathy and kindness towards the South. We are bretheren; and I pray that no fratricidal influences will be permitted to sunder this Union. There was a time when I thought the body of death would be too much for life, and that the North was in danger of taking diseases from the South, rather than they our health. That time has gone past. I do not believe that we shall be separated by their act or ours. We have an element of healing, which, if we are true to ourselves and our principles, and God is kind to us, shall drive itself further and further into the nation, until it penetrates and degenerates every part. When the whole lump shall have been leavened thereby, old prejudices will be done away, and new sympathies will be created.

I am for holding the heart of the North up to the heart of the South. Every heart beat will be ere long, not a blow riviting oppression, but a throb carrying new health. Freedom in the North is stronger than slavery in the South. We are yet to work for them, as the silent spring works for us. They are a lawful prey to love. I do not hesitate to tell the South what I mean by loving a union with them. I mean liberty, I mean the decay of slavery, and its extinction. If I might speak for the North, I would say to the South, "We love you, and hate your slavery. We shall leave no fraternal effort untried to deliver you, and ourselves with you, from the degradation, danger, and wickedness of this system." And for this we cling to the Union. There is health in it. We are to leave no pains untaken, through the Christian conscience of the South, to give to the slave himself a higher moral status. I lay it down as an axiom, that whatever gives more manhood to the slave sclacking the bonds that bind him, and that whatever lowers him in the scale of manhood tightens those bonds. If you wish to work for the enfranchisement of the African, seek to make him a better man. Teach him to be an obedient servant, and an honest, true, Christian man. These virtues are God's step stones to liberty. That man whom Christ first makes free, has a better chance to be civilly free than any other. To make a slave morose, fractious, disobedient, and unwilling to work, is the way to defer his emancipation. We do not ask the slave to be satisfied with slavery. But feeling its grievous burden, we ask him to endure it while he must, "as unto God and not unto man;" not because he does not love liberty but because he does love Christ enough to show forth his spirit under grievous wrong. Poor slaves will never breed respect, sympathy, and emancipation. Truth, honor, fidelity, manhood these things in the slave will prepare him for freedom. It is the low animal condition of the African that enslaves him. It is moral enfranchisement that will break his bonds.

The Pauline treatment is the most direct road to liberty. No part of the wisdom of the New Testament seems to me more divinely wise than Paul's directions to those in slavery. They are the food that servants need now at the South, everywhere the world over. If I should live in the South, I should preach these things to slaves, while preaching on master's duties to those who hold them. I should do it with a firm conviction that so I should advance the day of their liberty!

In order to labor the most effectually for the emancipation of the slaves, I would not need to say one word, except to preach Christ and purity and manhood, and to enjoin upon them faithfulness in every duty belonging to their state. I should be conscious that in doing this I was lifting them up higher and higher. I should feel that I was carrying them further and further toward their emancipation. There is no disagreement between the true spirit of emancipation and the enforcement of every single one of the precepts of the New Testament respecting servants.

THE TREPIDATION AT HARPER'S FERRY.

A Nation of Belshazzars.

[Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette.]

HARPER'S FERRY, Nov. 3, 1859.

The state of affairs existing here and hereabouts, is truly deplorable. A settled fear has taken possession of the people, their condition of excitement continues, and the binding obligations of the Constitution under which we vaunt our freedom, are overlooked or forgotten. A certain class of persons—tools of a party—may with safety venture upon the scene of action, to circulate garbled accounts of things in progress; a few attorneys, under a personal pledge of security, are tolerated in the enactment of minor parts in a gigantic farce; but, reporters of the press advocating those conservative doctrines which, in times gone by, these very men delighted to honor, are warned off, and kept off by the knowledge that their every action is watched, their every word is locked up in the lazar house of the vindictive memory of men fixed in the determination to find evil or to make wrong.

During the first week of October, your correspondent was at home all over the Union. Among the Virginians, boasting, as they ever have, of their chivalrous bravery, he especially felt at ease; his weakness, as a single individual constituted for him a strength among the great numbers that surrounded him; but now all is changed—changed, not for him alone, but as against a majority of the people of the nation. The price of safety here for any man not having a desire to perpetuate the crime of Slavery, with all its curses to the white man, is a life of deceit. Even such a life cannot be secure, if the party leading it is supposed to be Republican in sentiment.

Making another visit to this section of the country, in hopes of being able to present to your readers some of the many items of interest which are standing around, I find, first, that no Republican newspaper is represented, that enterprise for them, is defeated; they are, if known, watched and treated, at every step, as spies. I find that fear so permeates the very system of things, and excitement so far reigns supreme, that peace is impossible. These fire-eaters and Pro-Slavery demagogues, pass over into our Free States of the North, launch their phrases of abuse at our institutions, berate with epithets, as foul as their own practices, our best men, and, worse than all, stamp slavery upon the very bosom of our soil, by kidnapping our free men of color; and yet, by mob law, by threats, and by violence, they prevent, not our warring by words in their midst, upon their peculiar institution, but our very sojourn in their towns.

This may appear to be over-stated, but I tell you that Belshazzar's knees did not tremble more, when the hand of Providence wrote his doom upon the inner wall of his palace, than do these "chivalrous Virginians," whose imaginations conjure up millions of Browns and Smiths in the presence of any one from an Eastern or a Western home.

Upon reaching this place yesterday morning, I found the Old Dominion still making careful inquiry into the quality and supply of the ammunition at hand, still burnishing rifles and distributing muskets. Every one yet in a high state of excitement, and no chance of a subsidence thereof until "Old Brown" shall have paid the debt of nature. Armed men were parading streets which were all but deserted, a majority of the residents of the place being absent at Charlestown, attending the trials, watching the prisoners, and nursing the institution of slavery. I proposed to follow them, but learned that from the fact of former suspicion, that I am not "sound on the goose," it would be indeed unwise on my part to prosecute that design. Such acquaintances as I had made upon the occasion of my former visit, as remain here, more than hinted at the temporary cutting short of my usefulness by a lodgment in the county jail, on suspicion. Being conscious that I may be more profitably used by you elsewhere than in a dirty prison cell, I have concluded that the next train of cars will convey me home. In this, your readers lose no more than other Republican readers throughout the community; for as I have before stated, but one side of the question is represented here.

Circulating around as much as possible for one at whose heels is an armed man, upon this, the edge of the present excitation, but the scene of the original trouble, I find many of those little items of interest that I should have liked to have followed up and recorded.

The business at the Arsenal and Armory has been active of late. From the arms here deposited, upward of two thousand men have been caparisoned for war, and among these ever and anon, a new panic is produced by the circulation of reports of intended rescues, the latest of which, coming from an army officer, a Virginian named Hill, has served to increase the fear of a real invasion, until we find this still greater scrutiny of strangers that I have already mentioned. Perhaps at this particular spot, this is somewhat enhanced by the fact that the organized militia company which has been doing duty here, the Frederick City Guards, are at this time away at Charleston, the town being in the hands of the citizens, untrained to the martial use of arms, and not over competent, as they have lately shown.

The entire conversation here pivots upon the trials in progress, and invariably ends in a discussion of their final result. Brown, although not so treated by any means, is looked upon as a dead man. His doom has long been settled, his fair trial to the contrary notwithstanding. Everywhere one hears regrets that he was not tried by Judge Lynch, or put to death without even that mockery. Notwithstanding this, I find very many who admire his cool courage and persistent bravery. Some there are—they are, however, few—who would justify Governor Wise in saving him from a felon's fate or a martyr's death; but well nigh every one is clamoring for his blood, under the conviction, which they do not hesitate to express, that until his lifeless body is deposited in the earth, there is no security. Some men dead speak more eloquently before the world than do they while they are living; perhaps this may be the consequence of his death. I will not argue the assertion which every one here makes, that he has had a fair trial; the facts are recorded, and people may judge for themselves.

The visit of Gov. Willard, of Ind., and his political allies, U. S. District Attorney Voorhies, and Attorney General McDonald, is much canvassed in connection with the fate of Cook. This man finds but few friends. He is regarded as a bad man, who, having set a machine in motion, had not the courage to wait the result of its working. Fears are generally expressed that he will escape, and yet there is a settled conviction that his is the primal guilt. From conversation with several who have watched the progress of the entire affair, I am inclined to think that Cook will be used as State's evidence, providing, always, that the confession which he shall make, implicates a sufficient number of Anti-Slavery men to enable the united Democracy to regain a hope of success in 1860. The unscrupulous course of Willard's political career served him well at the fair, and may serve his brother-in-law, turned craven, equally as well.

I cannot but express my regrets that all these men had not died with their faces to their enemies; the hangman's rope is not the fitting end for any of the lot, save Cook and Copeland; for wrong as may have been their course, their courage in its fulfilment, their treatment of men who were in their power, and their first care to shed the blood of no man who was not in arms, or who was not actually fighting against them, entitles them to some credit in the minds of such as are not blinded with prejudice.

But let me state the particular evidences of present fear. Every train that passes, although it be now not searched by men passing through, is inquired of. The conductor is put through an examination—to what effect I could not learn, so that if any suspicious characters are aboard, they may be detected. Every man who stays at the station is placed under surveillance, and egress from the hotel, generally results in arrest. Last week has been prolific in arrests; they included a Presbyterian clergyman, who on his way to a meeting of Synod, stopped over to avoid traveling during the whole night; also a gentleman from Kansas, whose name I could not learn, who incautiously stated that he knew Brown; a Mr. Bartlett from Louisville, who en route for the East allowed his curiosity to induce him to look at the water tank, beside several others.

Another Arsenal Sacked.

ANOTHER TOWN CAPTURED.

No Excitement Whatever.

We copy from the Report of the Congressional Investigating Committee on Kansas affairs the affidavit of Capt. Luther Leonard, concerning the capture and plundering of the U. S. military depot at Liberty, Mo., which, as the public are aware, did not elicit the least suspicion of treason among the authorities at Washington! The statement will be found in pages 1129, 1130, and 1131 of the Report aforesaid:

I am military storekeeper at the Missouri depot, Liberty, Missouri. I have been stationed there ten years last March, having charge of the arsenal, which contains arms and ammunition of all descriptions. On the 4th of December, 1855, my Clerk, Mr. Grant, came from town and said there was some talk of their coming down to the arsenal to get arms, but he did not think they would do so. I took no measures of defence, as I never thought they would come, and my clerk told me he did not believe they would come.

A little after noon, I saw Judge James T. V. Thompson in the arsenal yard, and I walked up to him and greeted him civilly, and asked him to walk to my quarters. He declined going to my quarters, and said he would like to look about a little. I took him into the armorer's shop first, and intended going all about with him. We had been there but a short time before I saw through the windows a number of people outside. I wished to go out and see what was going on. In the meantime, a number of men had slipped into the armory where we were. When I wished to go out, there were men at the door who told me very civilly I could not go. One of them was Mr. Bouton, my clerk's (Mr. Grant) father-in-law. I took hold of him and gave him a little push; but he said, good naturedly enough, it was of no use, as I could not go out. I told them I was an old man, with a dislocated shoulder and but one eye, and I should not undertake to fight with them. I told Judge Thompson I thought it was poor business for the United States to build arsenals for a mob to break open.

The judge and the others told me there were troubles in Kansas, and they wanted arms, but would do nothing wrong with them. I told the judge this was aggressive on the part of Missouri, and every community was competent to take care of its own affairs, and that the Missourians ought not to interfere. A good deal more was said on both sides, and I felt indignant at the aggression. The judge himself did not say an uncivil word to me. I had not expected any such thing as this when I first saw the judge, or I could have had the gates locked.

The mob proceeded to take arms, forcing the doors, and took three six-pounders, some swords, pistols, rifles and ammunition, powder, balls, etc., as much as they wanted. They broke some doors open. I do not know how they got the keys to get into the powder magazine, which is composed of brick, and had double doors. Captain Price was the leading man in the crowd, as I understood. Mr. Rout was there. I was kept in the room until the men had got all the arms and ammunition they wanted and had gone away—Judge Thompson being the last one when he let me go out, and then he left himself.

Some six or eight days afterwards the guns were returned to the arsenal. They were left, I was told, at Colonel Allen's place, some three-quarters of a mile from the arsenal. In the meantime I had reported the facts to Colonel Sumner, and he had sent down a company of dragoons. The men sent to me to know if I would receive the arms, and I told them I was not in command, and referred them to Captain Beall, and he told them to bring them along; and they did so, and they were received. Among the property taken was some artillery harness. I cannot recollect how many sets. There were some deficiencies in the number of rifles, swords, and pistols, and some harness returned, but I cannot state the precise particulars. These deficiencies have never been made up by the citizens of Missouri, but I have been instructed by Colonel Craig, the head of the ordnance department at Washington, to purchase sufficient of such articles as I could obtain in the neighborhood to make up the deficiency, and we did so; but the swords, pistols and rifles we have not been able to make up. I do not know how much has been expended in making up this deficiency. Immediately after this robbery I reported the circumstances to Colonel Craig at Washington, specifying the number and amount of each of the different articles taken. In the course of the winter he sent me orders to ship the public property to Fort Leavenworth and St. Louis arsenal, giving me a schedule of the amount to be taken to each place, which I did as soon as navigation opened.

L. LEONARD, M. S. K.

Steamboat Polar Star, Missouri River, June 10, 1856.

The Spread of Pharmaceutical Education.

We have already announced the organization of a College of Pharmacy in Chicago, Ill. A delegate from that body was present at the annual meeting of the Pharmaceutical Association in Boston. A correspondent in that flourishing city of the West informs us that the best spirit prevails among the fraternity there, and that, during the coming winter, lectures will be delivered to the apprentices and employees of the druggists and apothecaries of that city. The Chemical and Materia Medica courses will be delivered by Professors in the Rush Medical College, and the Pharmaceutical lectures are prepared by a gentleman of experience, whose zeal in the cause is a guarantee that he will make a useful course of instruction.

The establishment of such an institution is no light matter. It must be founded with reference to educating the younger members of the profession to be better pharmaceutists than their elders, and hence requires a partial sacrifice on the part of their elders of the pre-eminence which properly belongs to those who have wrought out their own fortunes and won a position. It will require not a little labor to keep this college up; the teachers will be but poorly paid, unless the class can be taught at the same time with that of the Medical College, and then the course will be but imperfectly adapted to the wants of pharmaceutical students. Every employer will have to yield a considerable portion of time to his apprentices, for attendance on lectures, for experiments, and for reading, and may have, at times, to take the laboring oar for what appears, at first sight, an advantage only to the apprentice. Yet, against these apparent disadvantages, we may set the great gain which follows the diffusion of positive knowledge—a gain which is shared by many who are not its direct recipients—in fact, by the whole profession, directly, and by the community at large, indirectly. The master who has no scientific knowledge himself, has the benefit of the attainments of his boy, while that boy becomes modest as he is penetrated by the true spirit of science, and instead of assuming upon his superior knowledge, cheerfully acknowledges the liberality that has granted him a boon so inestimable.

The experience of those cities which have carried the system of instruction in pharmacy to the greatest perfection, fully illustrates this. Instead of being dependent upon others, they become centres themselves; they produce, and in this greatly augment the profits of the drug business. In proportion as pharmaceutists are educated, they assume relations to the medical profession full of mutual advantages. As empiricism vanishes before the light of science, an enlarged sphere of honorable and profitable employment is opened, and the profession becomes comparatively respectable and useful.

We shall look upon the experiment at Chicago with solicitude, desiring its complete success; and would encourage the pharmaceutists there to persevere, and in after years they will not only attain the advantages of their enterprise, but will stimulate the profession in other places to similar efforts.—American Druggists' Circular.

The course of lectures will be entirely independent of the Rush Medical College course; only one of the Professors is connected with that institution.

The Steam Plow.

Fawkes' Steam Plow, which for several weeks has been exhibited by the American Institute, was shipped yesterday for Illinois, and the inventor follows it. The plow is to be exhibited at Urbana, Decatur and Centralia, the three points designated by the Illinois Central Railroad Company, according to the terms of their award. On the completion of the third exhibition the Treasurer of the Company will pay to Mr. Fawkes the $1,500 premium awarded him by the chosen Committee at the late National Fair at Chicago. We hope that now the hurry of fairs is over, the capacity of the machine will be tested on a plot of one hundred acres or more. We are informed that our largest engine building firm is about to send their Superintendent to witness these trials.—N. Y. Tribune, 5th inst.

THE GREATEST WONDER OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.
Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative.
Says the St. Louis, Mo., Democrat: Below we publish a letter to Dr. Wood, of this city, from a gentleman in Maine, which speaks glowingly of the superior merits of his hair tonic. Such evidence must have its effect, when coming from a reliable source. If certificates are guarantees of truth, the Dr. needs no encomiums, nor useless puffery from the press:
BATH, MAINE, Jan. 20, 1858.
Professor O. J. Wood & Co.—Gentlemen: [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] I had wished. I used it about two [illegible]. I have since procured another bottle, of which I have used some. I can now certify to the world that the gray or white hair has totally disappeared, both on my head and face, and my hair has resumed its natural color, and I believe more soft and glossy than it has been before for twenty-five years. I am now sixty years old; my good wife at the age of fifty-two years, has used it with the same effect.
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in the city and a resident here for the last fifteen years, and am known to nearly every one here and adjoining towns. Any use you may make of the above, with my name attached, is at your service, as I wish to preserve the beauties of nature in others as well as myself. I am truly yours,
A. C. RAYMOND.
BALTIMORE, Jan. 23, 1858.
WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE.
Professor Wood—Dear Sir: Having had the misfortune to lose the best portion of my hair, from the effects of the yellow fever, in New Orleans in 1854, I was induced to make a trial of your preparation, and found it to answer as the very thing needed. My hair is now thick and glossy, and no words can express my obligations to you in giving to the afflicted such a treasure.
FINLEY JOHNSON.
The undersigned, Rev. J. K. Bragg, is a minister in regular standing, and pastor of the Orthodox Church at Brookfield, Mass. He is a gentleman of great influence and universally beloved.
WM. DYER.
BROOKFIELD, Jan. 12, 1858.
Professor Wood—Dear Sir: Having made a trial of your Hair Restorative, it gives me pleasure to say that its effect has been excellent in removing inflammation, dandruff and a constant tendency to itching with which I have been troubled from my childhood; and has also restored my hair, which was becoming gray, to its original color. I have used no other article with anything like the same pleasure or profit. Yours truly, J. K. BRAGG.

TO THE BE-DRUGGED AND POISONED CITIZENS OF CHICAGO.
You are overrun with a deluge of the vilest compounds in the form of "ALCOHOLIC DRINKS"
that ever emanated from that pest of society, the Liquor Mixer.
They are sold to you as a luxury, or they are dispensed to you as a medicine, and in either case the effect is the same.
There is but one way to escape, and that is to use as a luxury or a medicine, a safe and reliable stimulant, sold under stamp and seal, which renders it certain that it has not been tampered with. Such an article is Charles' London Cordial Gin.
Which is distilled under inspection of the British Government, is delicately flavored (unlike any other Gin) with some of the most valuable restoratives of the
VEGETABLE KINGDOM,
And is by far the most healthy beverage extant.
The most eminent physicians of Europe and America, not only recommend its use by the hale and hearty, but prescribe it as a medicine where a stimulant is required.
The female sex will find it not only a pleasant
CORDIAL,
But a certain relief in sufferings of a periodical character.
Analytical chemists of all ranks pronounce it perfectly pure, and its restorative merits incomparable.

Special Notices.

☞ Fact Number One.—That Cristadoro's Excelsior Dye has recently been analyzed by Dr. Chilton, the first Chemist in America. He pronounces the Dye absolutely harmless to the Hair and Skin.

FACT NUMBER TWO.

The Excelsior Dye is instantaneous in its effects; produces the identical color, which is indistinguishable from that of nature; and actually strengthens and invigorates the hair. This fact is established by competent affidavits.

FACT NUMBER THREE.

The sales of the Dye have increased two hundred per cent. in one year, and every respectable druggist and hair dresser finds it necessary to keep it as a standard article. Sold everywhere, and applied by all Hair Dressers. Cristadoro, No. 6 Astor House, New York. oct4-1md&w

☞ The history of Dr. J. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most remarkable medicine of the day, and the many cures that have been performed with it in cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, and other diseases arising from a disordered stomach or liver, places it at once among the most astonishing discoveries that has taken place in the medical world. The diseases to which Bitters are applicable are so universal that there are but few of our friends who may not test their virtues in their own families or circle of acquaintances and prove to their own satisfaction that there is at least one remedy among the many advertised medicines, deserving the public commendation.
Sold by Druggists and dealers generally everywhere. no4-2w-d&w

☞ Medical Notice.—Dr. E. Reading, who has been engaged in the treatment of consumption and other chronic diseases in this city for four years past, has returned from New York, and is now at his rooms in Matthews' Block, corner of State and Washington streets, Room No. 2, where he may be consulted until the 1st of December, when he will leave for the South to remain during the winter. During his absence, patients will be promptly attended to by his partner, A. J. Mead, who will remain permanently in Chicago. The Doctor's treatment is acknowledged to be eminently successful, and he will take pleasure in explaining it to all who call on him. Office hours from 9 o'clock, A. M. to 5 P. M. no1-a804-1m

☞ Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters, by increasing the quantity of life and vigor in every part of the system, enable nature to make incredible efforts for the expulsion of disease before organic distruction begins. It is thus that in a very short space of time they cure colds, coughs, rheumatism, flatulence, pains in the stomach, cholic, and nervous disorders in all their forms. But their superior excellence is in affections of the stomach, in female complaints, and the sufferings of enfeebled youth. For sale by Dr. W. B. MOFFAT, Proprietor, 335 Broadway, New York, and by all druggists. oc26-2m

☞ Those who are Curious to witness the wonderful perfection to which A. Oheswaldt (late manager at Batchelor's, N. Y.) has brought the manufacture of Wigs and Toupees, are invited to visit his Wig and Hair Dying Rooms, at No. 100 Lake street, and examine these curious productions of art. No scrutiny can detect the artificial from the natural when adjusted to the head. de5-1y

THE GREAT EASTERN.

She Fails to Establish New Principles of Economy—Great Eastern and Collins and other Ships Compared.

[N. Y. Times Correspondence.]

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 18, 1859.

My letters about the Great Eastern's trial trip, I fear, have been too technical in their criticisms and conclusions to be popularly interesting,—a pardonable error, I hope, in a matter almost wholly scientific.

I would now simply submit, as a review of the whole matter, a few plain reasons why the Great Eastern thus far fails to establish any new and momentous facts in the philosophy of Ocean Navigation.

The cost of locomotion depends upon two principal conditions. First—The amount of power required; or, in other words, the ease with which the vessel moves, depending upon the shape of the hull itself, and upon the speed. The measure, or rather the name of this condition, is horse-power. Second—The economical generation and application of that power,—that is to say, the construction of the boilers, engines, and propellers. The measure of this condition is the number of pounds of coal per hour necessary to maintain each horse-power. Thus the speed and other causes of resistance to the ship are expressed in horse-powers, while the economy for each of these horse-powers is expressed in pounds of fuel.

First, then, how much horse-power does the Great Eastern require at various speeds? The trial trip proved that at 14 knots this could not have been far from 7,900. The speed during this exertion of power was 14½ knots, but the sails are known to be accountable for at least three-fourths of a knot. Now the Persia, the Collins ships, and all vessels of their class, use 3,000 horse power for the same speed of 14 knots. The midship section, (i. e. the end area the ship would present to the water if sawed in two in the widest part,) the section of the Great Eastern was at the time not less than 1,800 square feet, which gives a little over four horse-power per foot of section. The Persia having about 2½ times less area, has a little less than 2½ times less horse-power, or a little less than four horse-power per foot of section. So the size of the Great Eastern does not diminish this remorseless call for power—not a pound. No matter how large or how small the scales, the power required is exactly in proportion to the section,—the shape, or the angles and curves of the hull being the same. This is too general a rule to require further illustration. "But the shape—there is the Great Eastern's advantage," says the enthusiast. Her shape is very like that of the Persia; the Great Eastern is 8½ lengths in breadth, the Persia 8 lengths in breadth. The lines of the Great Eastern, however, are the best, and will give her a fractional advantage. There are boats on the Channel of exactly the same shape of the Great Eastern, and one-fourth her size, built by Scott Russell. At a speed of 14 knot, their respective consumption of coal is very nearly in proportion to their areas. And there have been sharper vessels than the Great Eastern, so that she does not represent the most advanced practice.

Secondly—Does the Great Eastern show any improvement in the other condition of economy—in the cost of fuel for the production of this power? This being merely a question of engine and boiler construction, without reference to the number of horse-powers required, or to the shape of the vessel, the simple fact that the engines of other steamers have run with a less number of pounds of coal per horse-power per hour, settles this question also, and proves that the great ship has struck out no new economy in this line either. Why should she? Her engines and boilers are exactly of the old sort. It is true that, as nearly as was ascertained, she consumed but 3½ to 4 pounds per hour per horse-power, which is less than the average of ocean ships. But it is not less than that of certain specially economical ships, and it is a far higher consumption of fuel than is now common in the best stationary and locomotive practice, 2½ pounds being considered ample allowance in these cases.

"But the Great Eastern is so long, and so this, that, and the other, that she will run far more economically at high speeds," say the believers in mere size, irrespective of experience and science. I would incidentally observe that she will never run at all at high speeds without some improvement in her steam-generating powers, for she can now make only three-fourths of the pressure required at less than three-fourths of her intended number of revolutions, with economical firing. 182 tons of coal per day, at 18 knots an hour, has been repeatedly published as the Great Eastern's allowance. Since she burns 300 tons at 14 miles, this hope must be somewhat dampened since the trial trip. At all events, it is popularly supposed she will not burn much over 300 or 400 tons at 18 miles. There is a very general impression that she will slip along a couple of knots or so more in the hour, when she gets started. This is a fatal mistake. To double the speed of a ship requires not twice, but eight times the power—i. e., fuel; and the same proportionate increase is necessary for each addition to speed. "That's mere theory, and we don't believe it," say the enthusiastic. Let us see. These same little channel boats referred to above, the models of the Great Eastern (the Lyons and Dieppe, on the Newhaven and Dieppe line) require by actual measurement, 12 tons of coal and 15½ knots, 15 tons for 15 knots, and 20 tons for 16½ knots. And again: The Collins steamers of 3,000 tons require 61.9 tons of coal for a speed of 11 knots an hour, 80.4 for 12 knots, and 128 tons for 14 knots. There seems to be no great difference in the rule between the steamers of 300 and 3,000 tons—why should the great Eastern be an exception? If she is not an almost miraculous exception, she will require 16,000 horse-power at 18 knots, and will therefore burn, not 182 tons, but over 600 tons of coal per day.

The Great Eastern does not establish any momentous principles that have not been the basis of long practice. On the contrary, she does not embody many new and important principles which are already prominent sources of economy. That she will do a little better than other ships of the same class of hull and machinery, may be safely inferred from many comparatively little causes, the mention of which does not form a part of this discussion. Lastly: Her sails, though in larger proportion than those of common steamers, will not help her as much as if she were a screw steamer wholly, for it will, in nine cases out of ten, interfere with her paddle wheels by rolling them out of water. We all know that a steamer's sails—all of them—are very rarely used; in fact, never, save in case of a gale aft or on the quarter, i. e. nearly aft. So her sailing power will seldom help her at high speeds.

Nevertheless, as I have always said, the great ship is to a certain extent a mechanical success; and if she can be filled on long voyages she cannot fail to pay. Or if, as is likely, she would attract a large passenger traffic, by reason of her comforts, between here and the States at slow speed she would hardly then sink money.

LOOK AT THE PROOFS.

AGAINST DEMOCRATS.

Among the letters found in Brown's carpet bag was one of Realt's, a conspirator, alluding to his "very dear friend James Guthrie, of Louisville," as having given him some help or countenance. This is considerably more direct and palpable than "our old friend J. R. G."; aint it?

Another letter speaks of help given by "J. B." This implicates Mr. Buchanan exactly as clearly as "J. R. G." implicates Giddings.

Gov. Willard's brother-in-law is one of the rioters. The Governor has gone to see him, and taken the pains to secure two leading lawyers to defend him. Is there any stronger proof of complicity against Gov. Chase?

Again, Secretary Floyd admits that he was fully informed of every detail of the insurrection two months ago, but he didn't take a single step to stop it. Why? Probably he saw Democratic capital in letting it break out.

Again, Governor Wise spoke of Brown in the highest terms, as a brave, "game," resolute and sincere man, but a fanatic. Why should Gov. Wise praise a man who is guilty of treason, murder and insurrection, if the man hadn't been doing what Gov. Wise desired for the benefit of himself and his party?

AGAINST REPUBLICANS.

A receipt from Horace Greeley for correspondence furnished his paper.

Forbe's request that a letter detailing his and Brown's plans should be sent to Governor Chase. No proof that it ever was sent. Chase says he never saw it.

A statement that "J. R. G. had taken $3 stock."

Forbe's statement that he had spoken of his scheme to Seward, and that Seward paid no attention to his wants or claims.

The negro Copeland's confession that two men had given him money to go to Harper's Ferry, but which they contradict.

The Austrian Government—A Royal Swindle in the National Loan.

The following extraordinary notice has been published by the Austrian Minister of Finance relative to the national loan:

The last term of payment of the voluntary loan of 1854 having become due on the 24th of August last, and some supplementary sums only now remaining to be paid, the total sum of the bonds issued for that kind of debt, during the financial period of five years, amounts to 611,571,300 florins, of which 26,492,100 florins are in the sinking fund of the public debt, so that the amount of the bonds of this kind in circulation is 585,079,200 florins, and the voluntary loan of 1854 is definitively closed.

[From the London Post, Oct. 18.]

The Emperor of Austria in 1854 prescribed a national loan of 500,000,000 florins, and bonds to that amount were issued. A violation of good faith in these matters is unprecedented. What, therefore, is the horror of the public on being now informed that of these bonds there are actually 585,000,000 in circulation, and that some 26,000,000 more have been paid to the sinking fund; so that there is a double cheat, amounting in the whole to 111,000,000 florins. We have heard before now of bankrupt States and repudiating States, but it was reserved for Austria to exhibit the shocking spectacle of a swindling State. On the one hand there are 85,000,000 more bonds than are authorized in the imperial patent put into circulation; and on the other, instead of paying the sums due to the sinking fund, the Austrian Minister, having no wherewithal, simply coins more of these bonds, and pays 26,000,000 florins of them into the sinking fund instead of 26,000,000 of cash. The money is abstracted from the creditors of the State, and their debt supposed to be paid with debt.

☞ When Old Brown was arrested at Harper's Ferry, two hundred and sixty dollars in gold were taken from him, and no account has since been given of it. A correspondent of the New York Herald thus speaks of an expedition to the Kennedy Farm, the former residence of Brown:

"As soon as the neighbors around the Kennedy Farm learned of Brown's capture, they pounced at once upon his house and speedily rifled it of its contents. There were eight or ten boxes of wearing apparel, boots, quilts, blankets, &c., and these were speedily appropriated by people, some of whom we were assured were sadly in want of them. Barrels of flour were rolled out, the cooking stove and its appurtenances were removed, loaves of bread were distributed to the hungry, and in fact, in a short time the house was completely sacked."

SOMETHING NEW!!!
MITCHELL'S PATENT
Metallic Tipped Boot and Shoe.
An improvement has been applied to Boots and Shoes, by which a Great Saving in Expense is made. Every Boot and Shoe Dealer knows that Children will wear out at the toe the best constructed shoe in four to six weeks, and that it has hitherto defied the skill of manufacturers to obviate this difficulty.
THE "METALLIC TIP,"
mentioned overcomes it. A small piece of copper is neatly fastened to the toe of the Boot or shoe affording a complete protection to it, and rendering the efforts of the most inveterate stamper ineffectual to kick or wear it out.
We present this invention with the fullest knowledge of and experience in its Practical Utility. Having now for nearly two years been subjected to the severest tests, it has by its own intrinsic merits, actually surmounted every objection that could possibly be brought against it, as the accompanying certificates, which are but a fair average of hundreds of others, will abundantly corroborate. We have no hesitation in saying that the Metallic-Tipped Shoe is destined to entirely supercede, for Children and Youth, the old style; and we consider it a moderate statement, that one pair of the Metallic Tips will outwear two to three pairs of the old style, making a saving of nearly two thirds in the expense of shoes.
MESSRS. WADSWORTH AND WELLS,

N. B.—This invention is a complete protection from the cutting of the Prairie Grasses, and is especially adapted to Miners' use, and all occupations which particularly expose the toe of the boot or shoe to being cut or worn. ja10-a51-ly

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.
BENNETT'S
Champion Farm Mill!
PATENTED JANUARY 4, 1859.
The attention of dealers and the public generally is particularly invited to the New and Unrivalled Portable Farm Mill,
Which is the latest and best improvement in Metallic Grinding Mills, and the
MOST SIMPLE, DURABLE AND EFFICIENT
Farm Mill ever offered to the public. Is readily attached to Steam, Water, Wind, or Horse Power, and is adapted to the grinding of Corn in the ear, as well as all other kinds of grain, either for feeding purposes or the finest quality of flour for domestic use, and grinds the same with great rapidity, either coarse or fine. It is made of the best material and constructed in the most substantial manner, and in its operation both cuts and crushes the grain. This Mill, by an entirely new arrangement of parts and a simple and perfect method of adjustment (admitting of the permanent retention of the shell and grinder to their adjusted position) is effectually prevented from heating and wearing by contact of its metallic grinding surfaces, thus remedying the defects heretofore existing in mills of this class. Its durability is greatly increased and its action rendered perfectly even and uniform. It can be run with less power and owing to its anti-heating qualities, and the impossibility of variation in its action, it will grind meal of a quality far superior to anything heretofore produced by any mill of like character; in short, this mill, while possessing the advantages of all others, completely and effectually remedies their defects, and is confidently recommended to the public as a perfect mill, and possessing important advantages unattained by any other heretofore invented or constructed. It occupies but little space and weighs but about 275 pounds. They will be sold at the following low prices:
Mill without Bolt for making Flour.........$65.00

THREE DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMER NORTH AMERICA.

Misunderstanding Between France and England.

Spain Declares War against Morocco.

FARTHER POINT, Nov. 7.—The steamship North America passed here this evening on her way to Quebec, with Liverpool dates to the 26th ult. She will be due at Quebec about noon to-morrow.

The Asia, from New York, arrived at Liverpool on the 24th.

Nothing had transpired in regard to the proceedings of the Zurich Conference or in relation to the treaties of peace. A dispatch from Zurich states that Count Colerdo was still alive, but no hopes were entertained of his surviving.

GREAT BRITAIN.—All the Cunard steamers leaving Liverpool for Boston via Halifax are hereafter to call at Queenstown, and will thus be enabled to bring one day's later news by telegraph.

Sir J. Dean Paul and Strahan, the ex-London bankers, have been released by a pardon, after four years of penal servitude.

The first battalion of the military train for China are under orders to depart by the overland route.

The strike among the London builders continues, telling seriously against the men who remain idle. They have resolved to appeal to the public for aid in supporting their families. Recent returns show an excessive mortality among the families of the unemployed operatives, and there is reason to fear that many will perish from want and disease.

Parliament has been porogued to December 15th.

The Paris correspondent of the London Journal indulges in gloomy forebodings. The correspondent of the Herald states plainly that the impression has gained ground that a rupture between France and England is imminent.

FRANCE.—The Paris Constitutionel, in an article by the senior editor, replying to the assertions of the English press that the policy of the Emperor had left a state of political incertitude in Europe, states what the aim of the Emperor was in the beginning, compares it with the advantage gained, and accuses the English journals of inconsistency. Several of the provincial journals have published, simultaneously, violent articles against England, which are known to have been supplied by a Government official. In these, England is warned that an hour of trial approaches, which may put an end to her greatness forever.

The Paris correspondent of the London Herald, on the other hand, repeats the statement formerly made, that the preparations by France are suspended.

Inundations have recently occurred in the south of France, and have caused much damage to life and property.

General Bedsteau and Dr. Landzet have returned to France under the amnesty declared by the Emperor.

SPAIN.—At Madrid, 22d, the Government announced to the Cortes that it was going to begin war with Morocco, which was received with great enthusiasm. All political parties offered to support the Ministry, and the newspapers express the same political feeling.

O'Donnell announced to the Cortes that the Government had ordered the Spanish representative at Tangiers to take his departure.

The correspondent "Autograta" of the 23d announces that an army for Africa is to be organized about the middle of next week, when Gen. O'Donnell will leave Madrid.

MADRID, Oct. 24th.—It is reported that the Ministers stated that they would not have recourse to a loan and that the floating debt would not be augmented.

Accounts from different parts of Spain continue to speak of great preparations for war, and troops are collecting in every part, destined for Africa. A Paris dispatch states that Gen. O'Donnell had started.

A Paris letter in Le Nord, asserts that Lord Palmerston has declared to the French Ambassador that England would not suffer Spain to occupy both sides of the straits, and will oppose it by force. The English Cabinet, it is said, will make the question an European one. The London Times is of the opinion that any danger to Europe on the British Possessions of Gibraltar from the Spanish enterprise against Morocco, is absurd, but an attack by France on the Independence of Morocco, and an attempt to annex it to Algeria, would justify the strongest remonstrances in behalf of Europe.

The London Daily News thinks that the alliance of France and Spain against Morocco, or, at any rate, a war simultaneously threatened by both powers, is by no means re-assuring to Great Britain.

THE LATEST.—The London Times Paris correspondent says that the convention between Lord Palmerston and the French Ambassador, as reported in the Le Nord, caused much emotion in Paris. While the French Government had asserted that it would not change its policy as regards Morocco, Spain had repeated its disavowal of the ambitious project attributed to her.

The Paris correspondent of the London News says, it is asserted that Mr. Mun had sent a dispatch to say that England no longer opposed the expedition against Morocco.

ITALY.—It is reported at Tunis that Mr. Caborunda will soon be succeeded by Count Cavour in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The Pope returned to Rome on the 20th.

The reports of disturbances at Palermo are confirmed. The conflict began on the 6th and lasted till the 11th, at Baylira, near Palermo. Quiet was restored, but Palermo was still in a state of siege.

At the conferences between the Pope and the French Ambassador, it was stated that the ordinances granting administrative reforms are ready and will soon be published.

PRUSSIA.—Great preparations were making in Germany for the Schiller Festival. The Prussian Minister of Police has refused to allow the projected Torch Light Procession at Berlin. A democratic demonstration was feared.

MOROCCO.—It was expected that the Spanish forces would attack by sea and land, and afterwards occupy Tetrian and Tangiers. The French expeditionary corps was ready to take the field. It is stated that the French soldiers, taken prisoners on the 21st of August, were all burnt alive by the Moors, and the French troops were burning to revenge the outrage.

RUSSIA.—The reports of the intended interview between the Emperors of Russia and Austria are unfounded.

INDIA.—Telegraphic advices via the Overland Mail from Calcutta to Sept. 20th have been received. There is no political news.

From Texas.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 7.—The steamship Arizona, from Brownsville the 2nd, has arrived. Cortinas' band continues its depredations, threatening with fire and sword.

On the 25th one hundred and thirty men, with cannon and a howitzer, marched against Cortinas and drove him from his house.

They were surprised by an ambuscade, and lost the cannon and howitzer, and were finally entirely defeated with four wounded—none killed. Cortinas lost two killed. He afterwards sent a letter demanding of the citizens of Brownsville a surrender of the Sheriff and others to save the destruction of the town.

A general panic was at Brownsville. The city was barricaded and trenches were dug. An attack was hourly expected.

It was reported that, after the taking of Brownsville, Cortinas will attack Brazos.

The Mayor of Brownsville has appealed to the Mayor of New Orleans for 100 men, as the citizens were worn out and the Rangers have not arrived from Mexico.

Sixty felons were released from prison at Victoria and had joined the guerilla band, and were devastating the country.

The election was proceeding quietly.

The San Juan Difficulty.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Herald's Washington correspondent says that though diplomatic rules, and perhaps prudential considerations prompt the State Department from disclosing the exact state of affairs to the public, yet it is believed that serious difficulties may, and probably will grow out of the disputes between the United States and England, in reference to the Island of San Juan or Bellevue, in the Straits of Juan de Fuca.

It is generally conceded that Gen. Harney was entirely right in taking possession of the Island for the protection of the United States citizens there, and for the maintainence of the rights of this country to the Island, under the Pakenham treaty of June 15th, 1846.

The President will submit the correspondence to Congress at the opening of the session, and will ask for means and men to enable him to defend the rights of our country and uphold the honor of it at all hazards and to the last extremity.

The correspondent also considers the return of Mr. Dallas before the holidays, or early in the session of Congress, as possible.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Capt. Lavalette, in a letter to the Secretary of the Navy, dated "Naples, Oct. 14th," says he had taken American Consul Nicholson to Tunis in the Wabash. It was customary to salute the English and French Consuls whenever they arrived or departed, but no other such officers were similarly honored. But as our treaty with Tunis placed our Consuls on a footing with the most favored nations, and this fact having been explained, the authorities cheerfully accorded the salute to both Capt. Lavalette and Consul Nicholson. The carriages of the Bey were in waiting at the landing, where our officers were received by persons of the highest rank and escorted to the palace. The interview was very satisfactory, the Bey saying he should endeavor to cultivate the most friendly relations with the United States. Lavalette adds: "I clearly discovered that our presence was having a beneficial affect on the government, and especially with reference to the position of our consul. I am satisfied the short trip to Tunis will conduce to the best interests of the United States."

Senator Gwin will, at the earliest period next session of Congress, bring forward the Pacific railroad question, with more than his usual energy.

Arrival of the Vanderbilt.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The steamship Vanderbilt has arrived. She left Southampton early on the morning of the 27th ult. Her advices were anticipated by the North American at Quebec.

She brings nearly 400 passengers, including Senator Clingman, Carroll Spence, U. S. Minister to Constantinople, Judge Davids of Florida, and the family of the Brazilian Minister at Washington.

Bombay advices to the 27th September had been received at London by the overland mail.

It was reported that Neenah Sahib was dying of fever.

The ship Wabash of Boston had been struck by lightning at Bombay.

U. S. [illegible]

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The U. S. steamer Brooklyn sailed this P. M. with Minister McLane for Vera Cruz.

TERRIBLE SHIPWRECK ON THE ENGLISH COAST.

Nearly Four Hundred Lives Lost.

MONTREAL, Nov. 7th.—The following important item of news is taken from the Liverpool Daily News of the 27th October, a copy of which was obtained by the steamer North American:

"The public will learn with overwhelming grief that the splendid vessel, the Royal Charter, was totally lost yesterday in Muffared Bay, near Bangor. The melancholy intelligence which reached us late last night was brief, but we fear is only too true, of upwards of 400 persons who were on board, only ten are said to have been saved. There is some hope, however, that this statement is exaggerated, but under the circumstances the loss of life, it is to be feared, has been immense.

The Royal Charter had about half a million in gold aboard. When the disaster took place is not known, for the telegraph had ceased to work and so destructive had been the storm along the coast yesterday, that the Chester and Birkenhead Railway had been destroyed in two places.

At Penmanawe twenty of the bodies of the dead had been washed ashore. The bay in which the catastrophe occurred is two or three miles westward of Puffin Island, and six or seven miles northwest of Beaumaris. It has a shallow, sandy beech for several miles, with promontories at each end of the bay. The country around is wild and there are but a few houses in that neighborhood.

LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

BY THE OVERLAND MAIL.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7.—The Overland Mail, with dates to the 14th ult., arrived last night.

Great preparations were making at San Francisco to receive Gen. Scott. All the military companies and soldiers in the Mexican war would meet him on his arrival, and escort him through the city. All classes of people were preparing to pay him their tribute of respect.

The creditors of Messrs. Charpenning & Co., mail contractors between California and Salt Lake, had attached the stock and other property for debts, amounting to $30,000. It was feared that the mails would be suspended from this cause.

The water courses throughout the State were at the lowest stage, and miners holding claims in the beds of streams were reaping rich harvests of gold.

The advices from Oregon are to Oct. 8th. Five hundred and fifty emigrant wagons had arrived at the Cascades, Washington Territory.

Capt. Wallen of the Salt Lake Expedition, and Lieut. Mellen of the Fort Benton Wagon Road Expedition, announce the good health and continued prosperity of their commands.

Capt. Wallen had rendered great service to emigrants on the route.

The Indians were quiet.

The advices from British Columbia are to Oct. 10th. Everything was quiet at San Juan. The British Colonist says that it is currently reported that a new governor named Howe, may be shortly expected.

The shipments of gold from Victoria in September, amounted to $110,000. The miners at Fraser River were doing well.

Business at San Francisco was slow, and little doing from first hands, except by auction, the sales of India goods in that way being quite heavy.

Propeller Blown Up.

SANDUSKY, Ohio, Nov. 7.—The propeller Ohio, bound from Buffalo to Cleveland, with a cargo of 350 tons merchandise, when ten miles off Long Point, below Erie, on Sunday morning, at two o'clock, blew up and sunk in ten minutes. Seventeen persons were on board, of whom Thos. Corbett, second mate, and Michael Danigan, wheelsman, were lost. The remaining fifteen drifted in a yawl boat without oars, in a high sea and with but little clothing, for fifteen hours, when the propeller Equator picked them up and brought them to this port.

The Ohio was owned by the American Transportation Company, and is said to be not insured.

From New Mexico.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8.—The New Mexican mail, with dates to the 26th of Sept., arrived last night, via El Paso and the Overland Mail Coach the northern route having been abandoned in consequence of Indian outrages along the line. Passengers and letters report a continuance of depredations and murders on the plains.

A letter from Taos, Mexico, to the Republican, mentions a battle between the Utah Indians, assisted by the Mexicans, and a band of Arapahoes, at the crossing of the Del Norte, in which twenty-two of the latter were killed.

The Law of Pardon in Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 7.—It is ascertained that under the laws of Virginia, the Governor cannot pardon a person convicted of treason to the Commonwealth, except with the consent of the General Assembly—declared by joint resolution. This rids Gov. Wise of all responsibilities in the matter. What the Legislature will do is not known.

Railroad Accident.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Nov. 7.—The passenger train of the Belvidere and Flemington R. R., which left here at 6 o'clock this morning for Philadelphia, was thrown off the track by running against a rock, when thirteen miles below here. The engine is a perfect wreck, and the track is torn up for several yards. No person was hurt.

Slavers Condemned.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—Advices from St. Helena to the 18th of September, received here, state that the two slavers captured on the coast of Africa had been condemned there; one was called Stephen I. Townsend, of New Orleans, the other was unknown.

Louisiana Election.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 7.—The election is perfectly quiet. In the 4th District the Democrats elected one Legislator, one Justice and one State Tax Collector. The balance of the city was carried by the regular American Ticket by a large majority.

Loss of a Steamer.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 7.—The steamship Robert Waterman, from New Orleans for Matagorda, ran ashore on the 5th near Tombolier Island. The passengers and crew were saved. It is doubtful about saving the steamer.

Accident to a Bank Cashier.

R. M. Ludlow, Esq., of the Bank of Pike County, at Griggsville, Illinois, accidentally shot himself Friday while hunting, and is not expected to live.

Financial and Commercial.

MONETARY.

MONDAY EVENING, Nov. 7, 1859.

Exchange is more plenty, but we have no variation in current rates to notice. Bankers were glad to concede ⅛@¼ to each other, and we presume even ¼ was in some cases obtained. Outsiders could not realize above 1 per cent. Selling rates steady at 1¼. Currency continues scarce, and the fact is, money generally is close. The advances made by bankers on produce have been very heavy, and time must be allowed for their paper to mature, before any considerable relief can be expected.

Gold is retailing by the brokers at 2 per cent.; buying rates, 1¼. Large lots would scarcely command above 1¼.

Business matters generally are working smoothly, though they are conducted with great caution. The lumber trade and some other branches are dull.

We notice that some of the Eastern dry goods importers are having a hard time of it. They have worse prospects ahead—the results of their folly months ago. Let the West, as far as possible, avoid foreign luxuries, and let the debt-paying policy be rigidly adhered to, till all debts are paid. Let the importers who expected to profit by our extravagance, bear the consequences of their own stupidity.

The North American was telegraphed this morning with Liverpool dates to the 26th ult. Flour was reported steady. Wheat advanced 1d, under an improved demand. Provisions quiet.

The Wheat market to-day was more active and advanced 1c. At the opening there were free sellers of No. 2 Spring at 82c; but as soon as the steamer's news was known, the market advanced to 83c, at which the great bulk of the transactions took place—closing quiet and firm. Winter Wheat was in good request and steady. About 95,000 bu of all grades changed hands, at $1.03@1.05 for No. 1 Red; 90c for No. 2 Red; 85@86c for No. 1 Spring; 82@83c for No. 2 Spring; and 92c for extra Club in bags. Flour was also in better demand and advanced 5c for good to choice Spring extras. Inferior brands, however, did not share in the improvement. Winter Wheat Flour is dull and rejected. About 3,400 brls were sold at $4.12½@4.70 for Spring extras; $3.50@3.95 for Spring Super.; and $5.62½ for Winter extras. New Corn active and firm for shelled. Ear opened dull and lower, but rallied on 'Change. Old Corn more active and 3@4c lower. Of all grades about 50,000 bushels were sold, at 61@63c for old No. 1; 48c for new No. 1; 43c for new Rejected; and 32@36c for Ear. Oats were in better request and firmer. About 8,000 bu were sold at 28@29c for No. 1 in store; and 31@32c for Canal afloat. Rye quiet, with sales in bags at 62c on track. Barley firm and in good demand, with, however, no change in quotations. About 8,000 bu were sold at 60@61c for No. 1 in store, and 52@53c for No. 2 in store. Timothy Seed in good demand and firm, with sales at $2.08@2.15. Highwines steady at 23½c. Dressed Hogs dull and lower, on account of the warm weather. Sales of good heavy hogs at $4@4.25 per 100 lbs. Nothing doing in Provisions. Hides, ½@¼c lower.

Freights declined 1c. The rates to-day were: wheat from Milwaukee to Buffalo at 8c; wheat from this port to Buffalo at 7c; Rye to Buffalo at 7c; wheat to Oswego at 10½c; barley to Oswego at 9½c; corn to Prescott at 11c.

CINCINNATI—Nov. 5—The Gazette of this morning, says:

In our general markets we notice continued inactivity in flour, with decided firmness, however, on the part of holders. The business was small on Saturday, and confined to the local trade, at $4.70@4.80 for superfine, and $4.90@5.25 for extra. The receipts are liberal. Wheat was dull and heavy, and sales could not have been effected to any extent, except at a decline. A few transactions were reported at $1.05 for prime Red, and $1.15 for do White. The offerings of Corn are not equal to the demand, and lots on the spot are taken freely at 43@45, with sales to arrive at 40. Oats dull at 45@46. Rye dull at 77@79. Whisky advanced ½c, closing at 23½c. A small lot of new sugar, superior quality, sold at 8c; and thirty-two barrels new molasses brought 43c. A small parcel of mess pork sold at $13.75. Nothing done in other articles. Market generally quite dull. The reipts of hogs are increasing; near 4,000 head arrived on Saturday. The weather is too warm for packing, and the supply is accumulating. In the way of sales we have nothing to report. Lots on the spot are offered freely $5.75. The condition of the weather is disappointing packers, as regards the advantages expected from early hogs, and no movement in the market is to be looked for until with a favorable temperature, slaughtering commences.

The receipts at this port on Saturday included:

Flour, brls.	4,984	Wheat, bu.	3,587
Whisky, brls.	859	Oats, bu.	3,364
Corn, bu.	6,928	Barley, bu.	1,478

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 5.—Flour market quiet and easier. Holders of city superfine offer freely at $4.70, without finding buyers. Sales confined to 100 sks country at $2.00; 181 brls country super scratched at $4.30; 100 brls extra at $5.00 and 5.70. Wheat market better for choice grades, and all qualities are firm. Sales embrace 355 sks Spring at 90@93; 325 sks Club at 90@93, mostly at the latter figures; and 5,467 sacks Common to Choice red and white Fall, at 99@113. Corn—The demand is quite moderate with sales 71 sks old mixed at 52c without bags; 287 bags new white, in two lots, at 57½@60c. Oats—receipts very light, and holders are asking higher prices without finding purchasers. No transactions reported to-day. Mess Pork—Sales in a retail way at $14.50. Bacon quiet and unaltered; 6 casks shoulders sold at 8¼c. Barley—sales 780 sks on p. t.; 300 sacks prime at 60c. Whisky—market active; sales 301 brls in lots at 25c. Hogs—None offering, and there appears to be no disposition on the part of packers to make contracts for future delivery.

DETROIT, Nov. 5.—Receipts, 2,625 bu wheat; 5,325 bbls flour. On 'Change to-day only two or three light lots of wheat were offered and buyers and sellers were apart. Rates continue nominal at 1.20@1.25c for No. 1 and extra white, and 1.10 for No. 1 red. A lot of amber was held at 1.15, but was not taken. Flour, owing to the advance in freights, and report of a dull European market, is heavy, and the market is sensibly weaker. Good white brands held yesterday at 5.12½, could not be had for 5.00.

ALBANY BARLEY MARKET.—Nov. 4.—Barley is rather more freely taken, but the market is not active. I have been appointed GENERAL AGENT of the METROPOLITAN FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, OF NEW YORK CITY.

For all the Western, North-western and South-western States, consequently have resigned my agency of several companies heretofore represented for the purpose of taking risks in this city, in order to confine my business to a less number of companies, and thus enabling me to attend to the Western business of the "Metropolitan." I have, therefore, retained four companies only, such as I can confidently say are among the best in the world. They are as follows, to wit:

The advantages the Loan Fund Association offers over any other monied institution are:

1st. As a place of investment. There is not a Savings Institution in our city based upon a safer principle, or that pays so large a percentage, as these Loan Fund Associations are paying. Their popularity and financial standing in the Eastern States, fully attest this assertion.

2d. It converts rent into capital by enabling those who will avail themselves of its benefits, to procure a homestead through a loan from the Association, the same being repaid by a small stated sum monthly, with interest, until the principal is returned, thus making the Association their landlord and knowing that each months payment goes toward making the property their own.
